School Board Seeks Judicial Approval On New High School

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

City school officials, who have had difficulty selling their case for a new $15 million high school in Lake Katrine to a sometimes sceptical public, took their brief to court Tuesday where they hope it will stand on its own merits.

At issue was a condemnation proceedings by the Kingston City Schools Consolidated Board of Education in an effort to acquire the last major parcel — 28.475 acres — of what is planned to be a 68-acre campus.

The issue of price, usually the case in public land takings, was not addressed at all. Rather, the question of whether a new high school was needed was argued.

Representing the school board was Charles Gaffney and Francis Murray (who argued the case). Representing the property owners, the Vasilevich family, was Gerald Evans of New Paltz.

The case was heard before Supreme Court Justice EllisJ. Staley who reserved decision until after the submission of memoranda of law from both sides on March 15.

The issue of need was argued on two levels: whether a new high school was needed and if so whether the 28.475 acres in question was specifically needed rather than say, some 30 acres across Leggs Mills Road.

The defense called several witnesses, beginning with James T. Owens, former chairman of the Building Committee, School Superintendent Louis A. Salzmann and Augustus S. Brinnier, partner in the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios which not only was charged with making recommendations on sites but also worked up the site plan. John McCullough, the board's architect was in attendance but was not called as a witness.

Owens was called to the stand first and began by explaining how the school board arrived at population projections that predict the 1,569-student high school on Broadway will have to serve some 3,000 students by the 1999-2000 school year. Owens said the board acted under the direction of the State Education Department in using current enrollments (the high school enrollment as of last September was 2,382 students) and district projections from the state.

Under examination, Owens testified that school population (now 50 per cent over capacity) would increase to about 2,775 during the next five years (around 70 per cent over capacity) but then would level off and perhaps decrease slightly in grades ten through 12 during the 1980s, then rise to "slightly under 3,000" by the end of the century.

Salzmann, when he took the stand, reviewed the circumstances and decisions that led the board to Lake Katrine.

He said that the problem of overcrowding at the old high school (built in 1914) was addressed by him and the board when he tool office in 1969. The ini tial propIsoal was to build a new facility on the Broadway campus which would contain a library and eight classrooms.

That proposal was rejected by the State Education Department, Salzmann said, which then advised the board to seek land and to build another high school. Salzmann indicated that the idea to build a new 1,500-student high school and refurbish the old one, rather than build a new 3,000-student high school was the state's and not the district's.

Flood Waters. . .Headaches and a Scare

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

The usually docile Rondout Creek — swollen by heavy rains, high tide and a southeast off-shore wind — overflowed its banks from Kingston Point to Eddyville Tuesday, causing numerous headaches and at least one potentially explosive situation.

At about 2 p.m. Tuesday, the flood waters surged across Route 213 in Eddyville and collected in the garage at Buck's Junk Yard. From there, it seeped into an underground gasoline storage tank, forcing the lighter-than-water fuel out of the tank, onto the road and eventually back into the creek.

The Bloomington, St. Remy and Kingston Fire Departments were alerted. Roadblocks were set up at Abeel Street and Wilbur Avenue, on Route 213 in New Salem and at Route 32 and DeWitt Mills Road, keeping motorists away from the area.

"All we needed was someone to drive by and throw a cigarette out the window," said Bloomington Fire Chief Herb Faurote, "We figure that about 200 gallons of gasoline were floating on top of the water, so we kept the area closed off until the creek receded."

Ulster County Sheriff Thomas Mayone set up a command post nearby to supervise security until the gasoline was dispersed in the creek.

But Eddyville wasn't the only area that found itself under water Tuesday. Up and down the creek, the uncontrollable waters caused a flurry of activity, some bordering on the comedic.

Delaware Avenue found itself under some three feet of water in the Kingston Point area. It got so bad at one point that the Public Works Department dispatched a high-wheeled truck to evacuate the operator of the Kingston Point landfill. Several intrepid travelers commandeered a rowboat to reach their destination in the Delaware Avenue area.

According to BPW Superintendent Charles Cole, the Strand was flooded from Millens Steel to Ponckhockie Street. Workers at L & M Auto Parts on the Strand beat a hasty retreat when the waters swirled across their yard.

The barge yard at James Berardi, Inc. on Abeel Street was submerged for a time Tuesday afternoon; workers at the Kingston Power Boat Association spent much of the day lashing down floats and keeping a close watch on dry-docked boats.

The Sheriff Department's patrol boat spent several hours retrieving floundering boats, floats and debris from the creek.

Perhaps the safest place to be Tuesday afternoon was aboard the Driftwood Floating Theatre, moored at the foot of Broadway. "We just sat here and watched the disasters around us," said Showboat spokesman Tom McGuire, "had the creek gone up a few more feet, though, we'd be sitting on Broadway right now."

The only other trouble spot in the area was Springtown Road near the Wallkill River in New Paltz, which remained submerged, and closed to traffic, throughout the night.

Other streams throughout the county remained near the flood level today, but the colder temperatures should keep the streams within their banks. Officials, however, expected the Rondout to flood again today at high tide (around 3 p.m.).

The immediate forecast calls for high winds and cool temperatures — BUT NO MORE RAIN — Thursday and Friday.

Assembly OK's UDC Savings Bill

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Assembly approved —at 2:45 a.m. today —a bill setting up a new, separate agency to pick up the debts of the state's financially troubled Urban Development Corp. and prevent possible chaos in the nation's financial bond markets.

The vote came after four hours of rancorous debate with majority Democrats and one Republican casting 84 votes in favor while the minority GOP, joined by three Democrats, mustered 60 votes in opposition to the plan.

The measure was sent to the Senate.

Gov. Hugh L. Carey submitted the proposal earlier in the day after unsuccessful negotiations with the state's banking community to rescue the tottering UDC, which was forced, in effect, to default on $105 million in bond anticipation notes due Tuesday.

Under the bill's terms, the new agency would buy UDC mortgages at a one per cent premium. The theory is the plan would encourage banking interests to invest in the bonds, thus creating about $700 million which UDC needs to finish its various housing projects.

For its part, the state would have to provide $110 million in the current fiscal year, which ends March 31, and $80 million in each of the two succeeding fiscal years to back up agency operations. The bill itself did not provide for funds but both sides said they would be required and advanced in later legislation.

The complex, 38-page bill was presented to the assemblymen in the early evening. The legislators then held party sessions on its provisions for some three hours before beginning debate about 11 p.m.

Democrats claimed they were acting responsibly in rushing the measure through, and that the GOP-ruled Senate was irresponsible in not taking up the bill immediately.

Republican assemblymen jeered the Democrat claims and accused them of violating the procedural rules they established when they took over the Assembly in January.

Democrats Joseph Ferris of Brooklyn, Roger J. Robach of Rochester and Frederick Schmidt of Queens joined Republicans in voting against the measure and Republican Fred Field of Albany joined Democrats in voting for the bill.

Republicans charged that the measure would take about $40 million a year for the next 40 years to pay interest costs on the UDC mortgages. The Democrats denied that charge.

During the debate, Democrats held that the state would not provide any money until the banks provided $365 million in loans and delayed debt payments of $65 million.

Republicans argued that the measure would not force the banking community to take any action.

Mansfield Raps Cambodian Aid Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today he is "sick and tired" of seeing Cambodians "slaughtered" with American weapons and hopes Congress will not bow to pressure from President Ford for more military aid to that nation.

Mansfield told reporters that Tuesday's warnings from Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that Cambodia would fall within weeks without the additional $222 million in aid was "an old story, repeated many times."

"I am sick and tired of seeing pictures of Cambodian and Vietnamese men, women and children being slaughtered by American guns and American ammunition," Mansfield said.

"The more aid we give, the more killings there will be," Mansfield said.

Ford, meanwhile, said at a Hollywood, Fla., news conference today that the Cambodian situation is "very critical."

Battle reports from the Southeast Asian nation have also painted bad pictures. Communist-supported rebel forces surround the capital, Phnom Penh, and food supplies are being airlifted in by the United States.

"I think that would be unfortunate. If they are able to maintain national integrity until the end of the dry season there is a possibility of negotiations to end the war in Cambodia," Ford said.

But Mansfield countered that the administration request was for "indefinite participation — indirect as it may be —in the affairs of countries to which we have no commitment."

He said the South Vietnamese and the Cambodians would have to resolve their own problems and added that the fall of Phnom Penh could hasten that decision.

Ford pleaded for the Cambodian aid in a letter to House Speaker Carl Albert Tuesday.

Congress appears unmoved. Most opinions have opposed this aid and $300 million which the President requested for South Vietnam. Ford's letter to Albert, read Tuesday on the House floor and the strong statements in Kissinger's Tuesday news conference drew little reaction.

Restricted by a $377 million spending limit for Cambodia, the administration is beginning to do what it can. On Thursday Saigon time, planes will begin airlifting about 1,000 tons of rice, ammunition and fuel each day to Phnom Penh, now cut off by the insurgents. The $4.6 million bill will come out of economic aid for Cambodia.

Ford wrote that, "If additional military assistance is withheld or delayed, the government forces will be forced, within weeks, to surrender to the insurgents.

"Are we to deliberately abandon a small country in the midst of its life and death struggle? Is the United States, which so far has consistently stood by its friends through the most difficult of times now to condemn, in effect, a small Asian nation totally dependent on us?"

1,000 Tons of Goods a Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1948 it was called Operation Vittles and the Air Force flew food and coal —and dropped some candy bars —into the beleagured city of Berlin.

The airlift into Phnom Penh isn't anywhere near as large or as dramatic. But U.S. officials say additional aid is vital to the survival of the Cambodian government, just as the airlift was to West Germany.

Altogether, about 1,000 tons of goods a day will come into Phnom Penh on 39 flights. It is expected to last 30 days and will cost about $4.6 million, coming from the economic aid Congress has already voted for Cambodia.

By contrast, the Berlin airlift averaged 5,400 tons a day aboard 639 flights of much smaller planes. On the peak day, planes landed at one of Berlin's three airports at the rate of one every 61.8 seconds.

In the Asian version of Operation Vittles, four DC8s will make three daily flights each from Saigon to Phnom Penh carrying 600 tons of rice, grown in Texas and Louisiana paid for by the United States. That's 17,500 tons of rice, enough to give each of the 2 million persons in Phnom Penh half a pound per day.

From U Tapao air base in Thailand, one DC8 will ferry ammunition three times a day —300 tons, about half the amount fired by the capital's defenders. Twelve C130s will make 24 flights, carrying 120 tons of fuel for civilians, ammunition and other war needs.

The government wants to keep the U.S. presence in Cambodia to a minimum, so the Air Force is watching this airlift from afar. The five DC8s have been chartered by the Pentagon from commercial firms —two from World Airways of Oakland, Calif., and one each from Airlift International of Miami, Flying Tiger Airlines of Los Angeles, and Trans International of Oakland. The last plane will carry the ammunition.

Ulster Dems Favor Four Councilmen

TOWN OF ULSTER

The Town of Ulster Democratic Party's "Select Committee on Town Government Operations" will recommend that the town board consist of a supervisor and four councilmen, thus relieving town justices of their dual workload.

The committee has concluded that the town board "would be a much more efficient governing body" if two councilmen were added to take over the justices' legislative responsibilities.

"The town is growing so rapidly it is conceivable that the town justices will have difficulty continuing to handle the dual role of legislator and justice efficiently," said committee member Mrs. Joan Langton.

Another committee member, John Montague, said that many town board meetings have been interrupted by calls from various law enforcement agencies asking for one or both of the justices.

An important aspect of the proposal, according to the committee, is the additional cost two councilmen would represent. But, according to committee member Daniel Houser, the extra time available to the justices could mean more court hours and cases and therefore additonal revenue to the town, rather than additional expense.

Democratic Town chairman Kenneth Dargis summed up the committee's view by saying that the concept of our councilmen offers the people more complete representation. He added that the two town justices would still be available to offer suggestions and recommendations to the town board.

Dargis concluded by saying that the committee would be available to discuss the matter with the town board in detail.

"It is our intention to work with our elected officials to bring about changes that will be beneficial to all the people in the Town of Ulster," he said.

Cahill Declines

ROSENDALE

Paul Cahill has declined the Democratic nomination for Rosendale village trustee because of health problems, according to trustee Barbara DeStefano, who is acting chairman of the Democratic Party.

Ms. DeStefano noted that the Committee on Vacancies will meet within the next several days to select a candidate to take Cahill's place. Cahill had been selected at the Democratic caucus earlier this year.

Cahill also serves as village Democratic chairman. At Monday's meeting of the Democratic Committee, Gabe Kajeckas was unanimously elected temporary chairman. He will assume the chairmanship of the party when Cahill submits a formal letter of resignation.

Village elections will be held March 18. Two seats on the village board (mayor and trustee) will be contested.

Democrats Examine Highway Budget

A special Democratic committee which is studying town government operations in the Town of Ulster met recently to go over the highway budget which they stated previously was questionably high. The group is also looking into other aspects of town business. Standing (L to R) James Rundle, John Montague and Daniel Houser. '72 Malt Liquor . . . Future Homemakers Upheld

MENA, Ark. (UPI) — Two girls, Peggy Strickland and Virginia Crain, poured a couple of bottles of malt liquor into a punchbowl at a Future Homemakers of America party in March of 1972. School officials did not think it was funny and expelled them for the rest of the year.

Their parents sued, using an 1871 law that says anybody whose federal rights are violated can sue and collect damages. The case was appealed again and again.

The Supreme Court, in a 5-4 decision Tuesday, ruled in favor of the girls. The high court said school board members are liable for damages to a student if they maliciously or carelessly deprive them of their constitutional rights.

However, the case is three years old, and Peggy and Virginia have grown up and left home. Virginia got married and left town.

The school board suspended them in March, 1972, for the balance of their sophomore years.

The girls came back that fall and through correspondence courses and taking extra classes managed to graduate with their class in the spring of 1974.

The Supreme Court decision sent the case back to the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis for further consideration on whether the girls had a proper hearing before the school board.

Rachel Goforth, a member of the board at the time, and now its president, said she would reserve comment until after seeing the full opinion.

A spokesman for the National Educational Association found the decision consistent with an earlier Supreme Court ruling allowing lawsuits by parents of students killed in the Kent State University disorder in 1970.

"These are standards that a reasonable school board member could live with," the NEA spokesman said.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. spoke for the four dissenters on the Supreme Court.

They saw the decision as discouraging responsible citizens from being school board members, most of whom are elected and serve with little or no pay. Powell was once president of the Virginia State Board of Education and chairman of the Richmond Public School Board.

More Greek Arrests of Suspects in Coup

ATHENS (UPI) — Military authorities today arrested more officers suspected of participating in an aborted coup, sources close to the army said. Another report said the plot included assassinating Premier Constantine Caramanlis.

The sources said a total of 70 officers loyal to the military dictatorship which ruled Greece for seven years had been arrested so far. The government on Tuesday released the names of 37 officers arrested in connection with the coup.

The Athens newspaper Vrathyni reported today that the coup plan included the assassination of Caramanlis and said the strike was timed for the night of Monday, Feb. 24. The attempt was foiled hours before it was scheduled to be launched.

The government said Tuesday it would be several days before their investigation into the plot is completed.

Former Deputy Premier George Mavros demanded a parliamentary hearing today into a foiled coup by army officers to restore military dictatorship to Greece.

"We should finally find out who governs this place," Mavros, the leader of the Center Union party, said. "We should know if there is still a junta network in the armed forces."

But the government insisted on more time to question the 37 officers arrested Monday in connection with the alleged plot to overthrow Greece's first democratic government in seven years.

"It will take a few days for the judicial services to investigate the situation and to reach conclusions," government spokesman Panayotis Lambrias said Tuesday night.

Another opposition leader, Andreas Papandreou of the Socialist Party, demanded the resignation of Defense Minister Evangelos Averoff for "making false statements to appease the people" and laxness in uncovering the plot.

"The defense minister should not remain in his post because he did not fulfill his duties," Papandreou said.

Averoff, who has defended the army as "loyal," blamed Monday's plot on "a few unrepentant fools related to the detained protagonists of the dictatorship."

The military regime of Brig. Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides collapsed last summer after Turkey invaded Cyprus to undo a Greek-led coup aimed at uniting the island with Greece.

Syria on Peace: Old Borders, a Guarantee

By UPI

Syrian President Hafez Assad today said Israel would have to return to its pre-1967 borders and guarantee the rights of the Palestinian people if there is to be lasting peace in the Middle East.

His address at a student rally came after diplomatic sources in Cairo said Egypt had suggested a temporary peace formula aimed at a new troop withdrawal agreement with Israel in the Sinai desert.

"I want the whole of the Golan Heights. I want the whole of Sinai. And I want the whole rights of the Palestinian people," Assad told the rally at Damascus University.

A number of foreign diplomats were in the audience, incuding the American and Russian ambassadors.

Israeli territorial concessions alone will not achieve peace, Assad said: "Damascus does not determine peace. Cairo does not determine peace. It is only the Palestinian people which determine peace in the Middle East."

In Tel Aviv, Ha'aretz newspaper said Israeli officials believe Jordan is ready to return to the Middle East diplomatic arena after being shut out by the Palestine Liberation Organization at an Arab summit conference last year.

The newspaper said King Hussein suggested to a group of American visitors that the West Bank of the Jordan River, now occupied by Israel, be placed under international supervision until residents of the region decide their own fate.

The Cairo sources said the United State would be the "guardian" of the Israeli-Egyptian truce and might have to deal with possible violations.

The proposal calls for Israel to give up strategic passes and oil fields in the Sinai Desert in return for written commitments by both sides to refrain from hostilities during peace talks, the diplomats said.

The sources said Egypt appears optimistic that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger can sell the formula to Israel when he returns to the Middle East next month.

In Tel Aviv, Defense Minster Shimon Peres said Israel would insist on a strong Egyptian peace declaration before giving up the Mitla and Gidi passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields.

He said Israel's decision not to return the passes and the oilfields without a declaration of permanent non-belligerency was final.

JD Opposes Special Election

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said today it opposes a proposed constitutional amendment to require a special presidential election when an appointed vice president becomes chief executive.

Assistant Attorney General Antonin Scalia told the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Constitutional Amendments the proposal, if adopted, would "create a transition period in which the executive branch and the government are enfeebled."

Scalia said that under the amendment proposed by Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., the country could not hold a "normal" election to select a new president and it would reduce the vice president, who would accede to the presidency, to a "caretaker."

"In short," Scalia said, "unless the government is to be left in the hands of a powerless caretaker for an intolerably long period, it does not seem to me that the process which the proposed amendment establishes would produce 'the people's choice' in anything like the normal sense."

Pastore proposed that if a presidential vacancy occurs a special election would be called by Congress, and the vice president would hold the office of president until the election had chosen a successor.

The subcommittee is holding hearing on the 25th Amendment —under which both President Ford and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller achieved their jobs without popular election —to consider how it should work in future cases.

"The time might come when this could happen again," Pastore said Tuesday, "when this country will be subjected to having two individuals who have not been elected by the people."

Henry Ford to Court

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — Henry Ford II, arrested on a drunken driving charge while accompanied by a beautiful Detroit model, was summoned to court today. His lawyer indicated Ford may strike a plea bargain or plead guilty.

"We have spoken with the district attorney's representative," said lawyer David Minier. "We anticipate this case will be terminated" promptly, he said, ruling out the likelihood of a trial.

Minier would not say whether the word "terminate" indicated Ford would plead guilty.

"I'd rather not say. Any kind of plea has to be approved by the court," the attorney said.

He said it is "very unlikely that he (Ford) would have to come to California," even if the case goes to trial "but that question will become moot if the case is terminated..."

Ford, 57, chairman of the board of the auto corporation, was stopped by police Saturday night. He was allegedly weaving and driving down the wrong side of the street in the university suburb of Goleta.

Police said he failed a sobriety test and was jailed for four hours before being released on $375 bail.

Police said he was accompanied by Mrs. Kathleen Duross, 35, Detroit model and interior decorator, who was detained by released with no charge.

Anarchists Dispersed

LISBON (UPI) — Paratroops and police fired shots into the air early today to disperse a rock-throwing mob of anarchists who trapped thousands of Christian Democrats inside a local sports stadium for more than three hours.

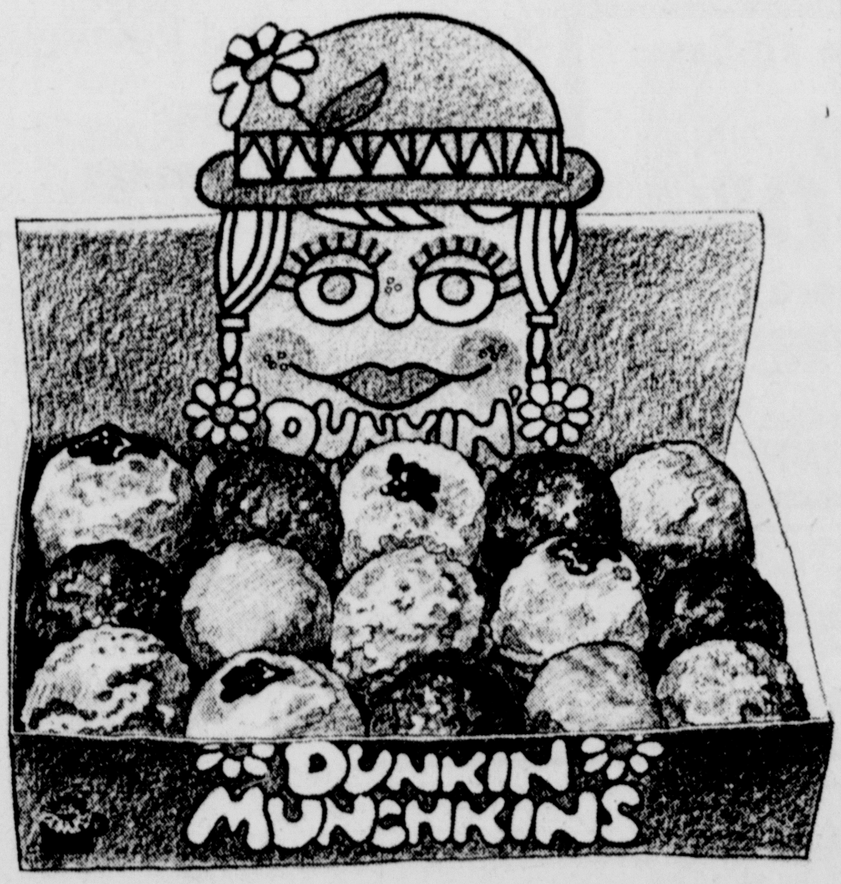

Hospital spokesmen said seven persons were treated for minor injuries at the scene, but that no one was hospitalized.

The crowd surrounded the indoor stadium and set fire to several cars to seal off its exits shortly after midnight.

Paratroops supported by armored cars and police on horseback were rushed to the scene, but it took them more than three hours to clear the area and enable the participants in the Christian Democratic party rally to leave.

National Debt Limit Going Four Times Higher Than Anticipated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The national debt limit is going to be raised four times higher than had been anticipated two months ago. One senator said the $36 billion increase demonstrated the perilous state of the economy.

The government plans a massive borrowing program this year, one which should in itself seriously affect the economy. One possible effect is higher —or continued high interest rate.

On Tuesday, the Senate voted 70 to 20 for the measure which would increase the nation's temporary debt limit to $531 billion, covering spending through June 30. The bill goes to the White House for President Ford's approval.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, said the need for such a large increase "reflects the seriousness of the recession." Two months ago, he said, the increase had been estimated at $9 billion.

"There are worse things than an increase in our debt," said Long, hoping increased government spending power will help "put our economy in shape."

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., said the bill will neither hold down spending nor limit the national debt —$492 billion as of Feb. 13. The current temporary limit is $495 billion with a permanent ceiling of $400 billion.

"This in reality is authority for the Treasury Department to borrow enough money to pay the debts we've already incurred," said Curtis. He said defeat of the measure would create "chaos" in government —the Treasury would be unable to pay its bills, including payrolls, social security checks and unemployment benefits.

These and other expenditures that make up the day-to-day activities of government are raised by borrowing. A citizen who buys a savings bond is taking part in this borrowing, but most of the money comes from sales of securities known as bills and notes. These have shorter terms and are most often used by corporations and foreign governments.

The need for money is acute now. The recession means individuals and corporations aren't paying as much in taxes as expected. The government also is laying out billions of dollars in benefits to the 7.5 million workers currently out of jobs.

The result is a deficit. For the current fiscal year, the gap between income and spending is an anticipated $35 billion. In fiscal 1976, which begins July 1, the deficit is expected to be at least $52 billion.

To get money in spite of the deficits, the Treasury plans to borrow $70 billion in cash in calendar 1975. Federally sponsored agencies outside the budget are expected to seek an additional $14 billion in the capital markets —more net new funds than have ever been borrowed by the public and private sectors combined.

This amount of money will, in itself, affect the economy. Money will be going into government bonds that normally would have been used to buy stocks and bonds or go into savings accounts. The stocks and bonds would have financed private investment and the savings could be loaned out for home mortgages, among other things.

This means there will be competition for whatever money is available. The economic law of supply and demand will make sure that interest rates —the cost of borrowed money —will remain high or go up because more people are seeking the available cash.

Bar Owner Gets Instant Impact of Recession

NORTH TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Art Zarrilli broke a few eggs into a plastic bowl for a pepper and egg sandwich at Joe's Bar and Grill. He's the owner, but he's doing most of the work himself these days.

Ordinarily, the grill is packed on Fridays with General Motors employes cashing paychecks and drinking beer. These days checks —and customers —are scarce.

"I've been here 23 years and I've never seen nothing like it," Zarrilli said, laying the pepper and egg over a slice of bread. "Ordinarily there would be a big crowd —I'd have a 50 or 60 in here for lunch."

There were two men at the bar.

"They don't have any checks. They didn't work last week they don't get any checks this week. They don't work this week —they don't get any checks next week."

Zarrilli's grill, one block from the huge GM plant along the ice-clogged Hudson River, is dependent on the assembly line trade. When the layoffs start, the impact is immediate.

"You just get rid of the help. That's all you can do," he said. Zarrilli poked at another pepper and egg sizzling in the frying pan. "I got rid of a bartender and now I'm doing most of it myself.

"Ordinarily I'd have somebody doing the cooking."

He shuffled around the tiny kitchen, taking a few orders over the front window. But the food orders are few.

"What will they do? They have money coming in now, but the only thing is supplemental pay. When that comes to an end, then ask me."

The GM plant usually has about 6,000 workers turning out 900 cars a day. Now there's only one shift —2,500 men building 450 cars. Those with less than 11 years seniority are out of work.

Zarrilli jokes with the few customers over the counter, calling most by their first names. Two men stare through the window at the snow piled against the curb. The jukebox is quiet.

Zarrilli worked at the plant for 15 years, before turning to the brick front bar and grill for an income. But he didn't quit because of a sluggish economy.

"They made me a foreman, and I didn't like it. The business was always good around here."

Now with business falling off, Zarrilli says he's getting by. His wife comes down to help out during the week.

"I have enough local trade maybe to make a living," he said, looking up from a hot plate of meatballs and sausage. "If I fire everybody and do it all myself."

IT'S A LONESOME OLD PLACE

'Good Cars at Good Prices'

"The only way the automakers are going to start turning profits again is to sell good cars at good prices," says Ellen Russell of Rochester, N.Y.

Her short statement put Detroit on notice that an honest price cut, not just an extension of cash rebates, which end Friday, is what it will take to get her to buy a new car.

Charles Goodman of Rochester doesn't think rebates should be extended.

"All the rebates in the world won't get me to buy the junk Detroit is putting out these days," Goodman says. "The cars should cost about $500 less because that's all they're worth."

Justin Camerlengo of Bergenfield, N.J., admits he was tempted by the rebates, but didn't buy a new car because he's just finished paying off a 1972 model. Like many others contacted by upi, he felt the rebates were another gimmick.

"Basically, there's no difference between a rebate and a sticker price cut in the long run," he said. "But that check, say for $400, would take care of the first few car payments.

Most Americans surveyed by UPI said large price cuts on all models would be better than simply continuing the rebates on selected —mostly small — models.

Even dealers said they felt the rebates, started by Chrysler and picked up by General Motors, Ford and American Motors, have accomplished what they set out to do and something else is needed.

"What the rebate has done has got the people out looking," says John Crabbe, a San Francisco new car salesman. "It has stimulated the business and has taken people out of neutral.

"It really has been a tremendous shot in the arm," he says. "But what we really need now is a tax break, like an income tax rebate, to get money back into people's hands so it will get circulating again."

Sometime this week, the automakers are expected to begin outlining their plans for the days after the rebates end. Many dealers are fearful of the early days in March.

On Gun Control

Recently New York City was the scene of a shocking episode in which a policeman and an off-duty city housing policeman were shot to death. According to reports, two policemen tried to extricate a relucant individual from a taxi, and upon opening the door one was shot in the chest. Before he died, he and his partner fired at the man in the car— the housing policeman—and he also died.

Time magazine used the story as a lead-in to an analysis of the rash of policemen's deaths in the past few years. The article noted that police are deeply concerned about the "cop carnage," and that some urban police chiefs are coming around to the view that strict gun control laws are necessary.

A point not emphasized in Time's story, however, was that all involved in the New York shooting episode were policemen and even the housing policeman was armed though he was off duty and reportedly had been drinking. Some time ago another magazine, the New Times, ran a rather sensational but substantially accurate story on the same subject. It noted that there had been similar instances around the country, resulting in the deaths of one or more policemaen.

There is a plainly evident need for better civilian gun control. We raise the question whether there should not also be more carefully designed controls over guns for policemen as well. In many communities, police are required to carry guns even when off duty. There are sound reasons for this: the policeman never knows when he may find himself in a situation where his weapon is needed. Still, the mere fact that so many revolvers are floating around town on people who may be socializing and drinking presents an alarming picture.

The whole situation argues for a much more carefully thought-out plan of gun control. The main thrust of it should obviously be directed at the civilian population. But some attention also must be given to a better rationale as to circumstances under which the police should go armed.

There's Hope

Quite some time ago President Ford announced the goal of reducing oil consumption by a million barrels a day. This takes on new interest in light of a recent poll which shows some decline in Americans' dependence on the automobile.

The Gallup Poll finding which has a particular bearing on the goal of saving a million barrels of oil daily is this: four out of 10 questioned said they would find it "not at all difficult" to make a one-fourth reduction in the number of miles they drive. Consider that alongside estimates that a 20 per cent cut in U.S. auto mileage would account for that million barrels.

Here, as in other things , slips 'twixt cup and lip are to be expected. The question is not whether Americans would find it easy to cut down on mileage, but whether they would do so. Still, it is encouraging that so many think they could reduce mileage, and that only 31 per cent said they would find it very hard to do this. We may be developing a conservation-minded society, after all.

CIA Obtains Contacts Close to Power

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—It can now be revealed that CIA agents have trained the elite units which guard favored foreign monarchs, premiers and dictators.

This has given the CIA contacts close to the seat of power, according to our sources, in such countries as Ethopia, Indonesia, Jordan, Laos, Somalia, South Korea, South Vietnam and Thailand.

The CIA has been training plance guards for more than two decades. In the process, the CIA has quietly developed some bodyguards into informants and used others to influence palace policy-making.

Thailand is typical. The crack, 60-man protective force, which guards King Bhumibol Adulyadej and Queen Sirikit, is directed by a trusted CIA trainee. He is Lt. Gen. Vitoon Yasawad, who also led the CIA'a Thai irregulars in Laos until the 1973 ceasefire.

"Whoever controls the palace guard in Thailand, controls the crown," one Asia-wise, ex-CIA operative told us. He claimed the CIA has run the palace guard in Bangkok since the 1950s.

Once, high government officials escaped from one of Thailand's periodic coups and sought sanctuary in the basement of a CIA agent, our sources recall.

Fletcher Prouty, a former Air Force officer who had been attached to the CIA, described how the CIA saved former Prime Minister Sirit Thanarat in an even more dashing exploit. The prime minister was recuperating in a Tokyo hospital, Prouty told us, when a coup began to develop back in Bangkok.

The CIA rushed the ailing field marshal home in a U. S. military plane and the CIA-trained bodyguards responded with such a bristling display of efficiency that the coup was averted.

Yasawad's present protective force is armed with Thai-made German-designed rapid-fire rifles and are skilled at handling explosives.

They were trained not far from the big U. S. base at Korat, which became a CIA subcenter during the Vietnam War and is still a major intelligence outpost.

Yasawad has acknowledged only the existence of his special 60-man protective force, which is called SWATS for Special Weapons and Tactics. He has denied any CIA connection with his elite unit.

ENERGY MUDDLE: The leaders in Washington simply don't seem to be able to ge together on an energy policy. Yet the nation is in desperate need of a program that will assure enough energy to run our factories, heat our homes and operate our automobiles for the next decade.

In the White House, President Ford has porclaimed there is an energy crisis and has called upon all Americns to sacrifice. Yet Secretary of the Treasury William Simon is saying there is plenty of petroleum just waiting to be pumped from the Alaskan oil fields and offshore oil beds.

On Capitol Hill, Speaker Carl Albert has warned his colleagues priv tely that the United States must launch an emergency program to develop energy on the scale of the Manhattan Project which developed the atomic bomb. But he has been unable to persuade the various House committees, which have jurisdiction over various phases of the energy problem, to work together for a common solution. The House, meanwhile, took a 10-day holiday and the Senate wants to put off action on the President's energy package for three months.

We have been bombarded with letters from troubled Americans who are willing to sacrifice for their country but don't know what to do. "How serious is the crisis?" pleaded a Riverside, Calif., housewife. "Isn't there someone in Washington who will tell it like it is?"

People are willing to face the facts; it's the leadership that's lacking.

JAUNDICED JUDGE? Federal regulations lowering the lead content of gasolines recently were overturned by the courts. The Judge who wrote the decision, it now develops, was a former counsel to a major supplier of lead concentrates.

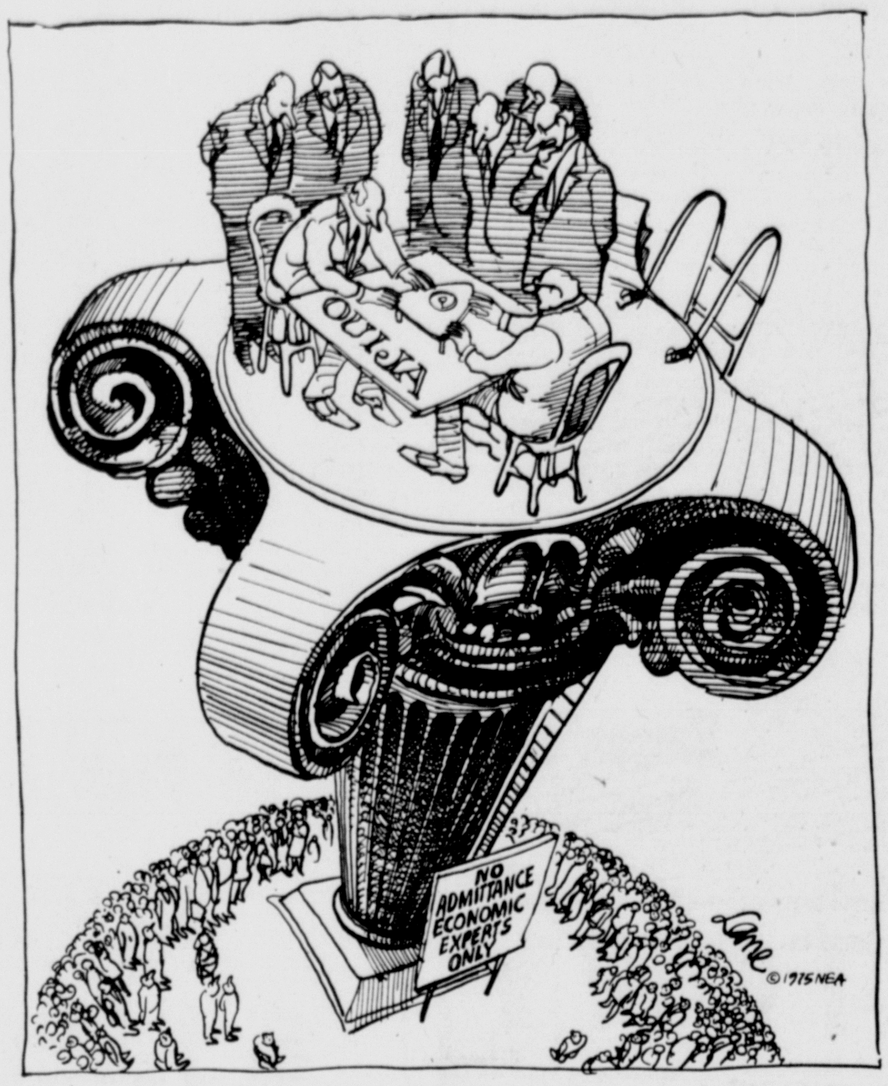

The decision was written by Judge Malcolm Wilkey, of the D. C. Court of Appeals, who called the federal guidelines eliminating lead from gasoline "capricious" and "arbitrary."

We have now learned that the judge for seven years was general counsel to Kennecott Copper, whose Ozark subsidiary produces much of the lead concentrates used in leaded gasoline.

A spokesman for the judge asserted that there was "no conflict of interest" in the decision. He refused to answer specific questions, however, about Judge Wilkey's present realtionship with the Kennecott company. The spokesman would neither confirm nor deny reports that the judge has a current financial interest in Kennecott Copper.

A Kennecott spokesman said it was against company policy" to divulge the names of corporate stockholders.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency has requested a rehearing on the decision. If it is granted, the same Judge Wilkey again will be sitting in judgement.

Inside Report

WASHINGTON—In his frantic quest for enough Senators to save the oil import tax, President Ford has totally reversed the old Nixon, "hardcore" legislative strategy—with early results causing conservative Republicans to mutter I told you so.

To President Nixon, liberal Republicans were untouchables, acarcely more respectable than newsmen and not to be treated with deference. But President Ford recently invited 13 liberal Republican Senators belonging to the Wednesday Group for dinner—a White House first.

That repudiated Nixon's strategy of building a bipartisan "hardcore" in Congress and neglecting liberals of both parties. Facing far worse congressional problems than Nixon ever encountered, Mr. Ford seeks support anywhere he can find it. Besides, he has always attempted to gloss over ideological differences among Republicans.

So, camaraderie prevailed for over three hours with liberal Republican Senators at Mr. Ford's dinner table even though most oppose his oil import tax. Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, a foremost untouchable of Nixon days, opened the discussion by expressing satisfaction in a President who would seek opinions not in tune with his own.

Such opinions were quickly offered. With Sen. Jacob Javits of New York leading the way, Eastern Senators complained that the import tax impact on heating oil prices was unfair to their region. The President replied he intended to "tilt" the impact—more on gasoline, less on heating fuel. Javits and the other Easterners commended Mr. Ford's flexibility (though Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska interjected that too much "tilt" on gasoline would lose his present support).

The dinner encouraged the White House to hope that, though it believed only five of the 13 Wednesdayers opposed the Democratic bill suspending the Ford import tax, the number of "no" votes had been expanded. In fact, only four of the Wednesdayers—one less than expected—voted against it the next day.

Nearly as disappointing was only on Southern Democrat, Sen Russell Long of Louisiana, opposing the tariff suspension. At a White House breakfast for Southern Senators, Sen. John B. McClellan of Arkansas sounded so helpful that presidential aides were sure he would vote against the bill and perhaps bring other Southerners along with him. They were wrong.

To conservative Republicans, the overwhelming Senate defeat establishes Mr. Ford's folly. Their argument: in wooing liberal Republicans, the President has sought the unattainable while alienating attainable Dixiecrats.

In truth, however, Mr. Ford lacks the rapport with old line Southerners enjoyed by Nixon. Thus, he can never command similar loyalty. Moreover, the White House is still seeking additional Wednesday Group support on the crucial vote to sustain Mr. Ford's veto of the import suspension bill. His strategists hope for turn-arounds by Maryland's two Senators, Charles Mathias and J. Glenn Beall, Javits himself and perhaps other Wednesdayers once Mr. Ford spells out his "tilt" away from higher-priced heating fuel.

Whatever happens to the oil tariff, the Ford White House intends to continue treating the liberals as bona fide Republicnas— believing the policy eventually will pay dividends. So, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will go to Capitol Hill this week for a private luncheon with the Wednesday groups of both the House and Senate. Like last weeks dinner, that never could have happened in the Nixon era.

Despite Ron Ziegler's assurances that Richard M. Nixon is through with politics, the former President recently showed he not only regards himself as a Republican leader but—to the anguish of some Republican politicians—apparently intends to play that role.

On Jan. 28, five days after Rep. John Jarman of Oklahoma switched from Democratic to Republican, he received a telephone call (through the White House switchboard, according to Jarman's office) from Nixon in San Clemente. Nixon commended Jarman's conversion, welcomed him into the Republican party and wished him well there.

Covering A Lot of Territory

The scene is in Faux Cap, a hot and breezy town on the southern tip of Madagascar. The office is square. There is a rolltop desk behind which a stout face and bald head lift like a turtle. On the wall is a yellowed tint of General Jan Smuts. The top corner is curling downward over the general's forehead. A hunched man sits cross-legged, frowning at baldy.

The man behind the desk fans himself with pad of foolscap, dips pen in well, and adjusts his jowls ot to his disarming smile: "Well, now, Mr. Nixon, or is it Nickson with a ck—ah, an x, of course—well, we are i n the market for salesmen, but we will have to know a little—"

Nixon: I was President.

Baldy: My name is Dixon. With an x, rather than a cks. We were British until the Boers—what was that about your employment?

Nixon: President. United States.

Dixon: Of course. Of course you were (writes it all with a scratch pen). And what did you do before that? Noxon (with dignity): I was Vice President, Senator, a member of the House—. Dixon (disappointed): Oh, dear. Nothing but politics. I'm afraid—.

Nixon: Politicians are great salesmen and you're looking for salesmen. Dixon: Right. How frightfully dull of me. Why did you leave your most recent position? Nixon (smiling faintly): It's a long story. Dixon: Try me.

Nixon: Well, I got out of bed one morning—. Dixon: Excuse me. Is it your custom to arise each morning? Nixon: There's a band that plays "Hail to the Chief" at some ungodly hour—. Dixon: And you stir? Nixon: That's hardly the word. You fly out of bed.

Dixon: We're aware of it. Truly we are. But the mails are poor, sir, and I think you are having some trouble in Korea. Am I saying it right? Nixon: That was before my time. My main duty was to run the United States.

Dixon: Indeed? Where? Nixon: Not where. How . I tried a few innovations—. Dixon (enthusing): Oh good. I must put a plus mark next to that response. We just love innovative salesmen. Nixon (sighing): I hired a group of advertising men and speech writers and I bugged everybody—.

Dixon: You mean debugged. We debug the natives. They carry nasty little buggers in their hair you know. Nixon: All I want is a job, Mr. Trixon. Dixon: Dixon. Nixon: I have a daughter—. Dixon (beaming): Who hasn't? Now please get on with it. You were running the country and debugging your assistants.

Nixon: There was this clown Butterfield—. Dixon: Two Ts? Nixon: He told a Congressional committee, inadvertently I guess, about the bugging—. Dixon: What, may I ask, sir, is a Congressional committee? An assortment of citizens, I presume. Nixon: Hardly. More like a conglomerate of wild hiyenas. They ask questions.

Dixon: Oh, precious. I ask questions. I'm doing it right now. It can be a delicious piece of business if you get the right subject. Only last week, I had a shapely young lady who told me—.

Nixon (interrupting): So there I was, running the country and bugging the hell out of myself—. Dixon: Excuse me. Debugging. Caucasians never bug themselves. Nixon (sadly): Have I got a flash for you!

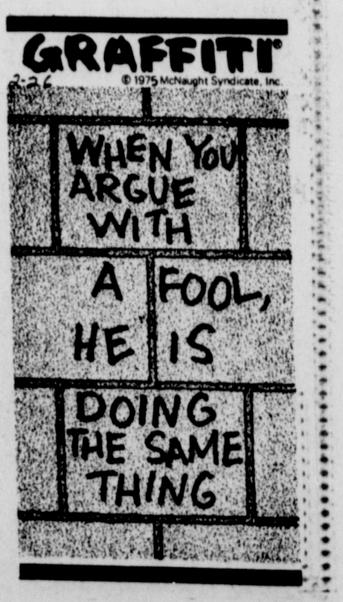

Dixon: How old would you say you are, Mr. Mixon. Nixon: Nixon, with an N. I'll be 63 next January 9th, if somebody will let me. Dixon: Married? Mixon: Hell, yes. Dixon: Do you own property? Nixon: I could answer that in a half-hour, if you have the time. Dixon (consulting watch): It's 10:22. Nixon: I have property, almost.

Dixon (gleefully): Let's write yes, shall we? Did you attend college? Nixon: Whittier, Dixon: Whattier? Nixon: Whittier, in California. Dixon: I'm afraid , sir, that this is becoming confusing. How could you attend Whittier if you were running the debugging. Nixon: Ah, the hell with it. Dixon: Bravo! Bravissimo! We like salesmen with spirit.

Nixon (mumbling): If the big enchilada had stonewalled it—. Dixon: May I say, sir, without appearing to be too forward that you qualify? We will have to get you a visa and a work permit for the Republic of Malagasy, but there will be no problem. One last question, Mr. Quizon. Who recommended you to us?

Nixon: Some S.O.B. named Buckley. Dixon: Are those his intials? Nixon: They are now. Dixon: Jolly good. Your territory will be between Faux Cap and Tulear, about 200 miles. Nixon (plaintively): A lot of mountains. Dixon: Fear not. You will be furnished with a Honda, a plastine helmet, and samples.

Nixon (wearily): What am I selling? Dixon: Oh, I thought I told you . Tape cassettes. . . .

The Reader Writes

Minnewaska 'What Ifs'

I have been following with interest your paper's coverage and the coverage of other area news media of the controversial plan of the Minnewaska Mountain Houses Inc. to seek rezoning in the Town of Rochester (where I live) in order to allow their building an intensive commercial development and 1,136 condominium homes o n Minnewaska Resort lands along Highway 44-55. I have several "what ifs?" about all this.

To substantiate their request that the town fathers of Rochester set aside the zoning laws that all the rest of us live by in order that they may build this development, the Minnewaska operation has presented a rezoning petition and a conceptual plan telling what they would like to do once the land is rezoned. But there is no guarantee that I can see, and I have studied the rezoning petition that they can or will or even will have to do what their plan says. My first point is what if they get their rezoning and choose not to do what their plan says they will? As far as I can see, the only concrete thing about their petition is the request that Rochester waive its zoning laws for them. Once the land is rezoned it is out of the protection of the town zoning laws and open to a vastly wider kind of commercial exploitation than the Minnewaska proposal suggests. What if that happens?

Take a look at the language of their rezoning petition. It's vague: "Town House Development areas PROPOSED are INTENDED to be...we BELIEVE that...CAN BE designed...it is INTENDED that the area will be blended architecturally..." (Capitalizations are mine.) This is not the language of guarantees, it is the language of a proposal.

The Concept Plan Report talking about the commercial development sight along 44-55 states, "The projected traffic to Minnewaska State Park would provide the basis for fantastic income projections for such (roadside) concessions." The petition mentions vaguely roadside concessions as being a bank, retail stores, a theater, restaurant among other businesses. But when "fantastic income projections" are being bandied about, is that not the fertile territory where Col. Sanders and Ronald MacDonald love to operate? Once rezoned as commercial, could Minnewaska not lease that roadside property or sell it to a variety of business not mentioned in the petition? What if that happens?

The housing development part of the proposal strikes me as pretty "What ify" too. In reply to comments about what kind of taxes this new village in our town would generate for the rest of us, the Minnewaska organization replies that these condominiums are intended as recreational "second homes. That they will basically bring in only weekend and summer residents. Well, their plans for the commercial part of the development seem to belie that contention. Are banks, office space, and various types of retail stores required for weekend residents? Do summer residents require housing which is insulated, and contains every convenience of a city apartment?

But let us take the Minnewaska operation at its word. The condominiums will not raise our taxes and complicate and overburden our local services because they are recreational, second homes. Well, two large second home developers in our area, "Sleepy Hollow Estates" in Greene County and "Emerald Green" in Sullivan both filed bankruptcy papers recently. The second home market is crippled all over the country due to the gas shortage, the general ecomonic crisis, tight mortgage money, which isn't being loaned for second homes, and other recession-brought economic problems. Land developers all over the country are in trouble. Are we, then , to believe that the Minnewaska project will succeed where other highly experienced developers are failing? And what if Minnewaska does fail? What prevents it from simply selling the now commercially and heavy residdential rezoned land at a huge profit to another developer with the economic muscle to simply wait out the recession and start the development later?

I could suggest many, many more "what ifs" about this unwise development project. But I urge your readers to become informed on this question and write some of their own "what ifs" to Mr. Wilfred Neff, Town Supervisor and the Town Board of Rochester, Accord, New York.

Sincerely,
N.S. Klymowska

Favors DEC Plan

Editor, The Freeman:

Mr. Farber's comments in last Wednesday's Freeman bring out a very interesting point. They prove that he does not understand stream ecology or fishing as a sport.

DEC is proposing a temporary experiment, three years, on only eight-tenths of a mile of stream. This is a short time in the life of a local fisherman, and the distance to be controlled is less than a twentieth of the Esopus Creek length. Mr. Farber, however, feels this proposal will cut down the "fish in the pan" for Ulster County fishermen. There is enough excellent fishable water above the Five Arches Bridge for all hungry fishermen who want to try for a limit. This small portion of stream to be set aside for a temporary experiment will not hurt anyone. If the trial proves futile, the restriction will be lifted. If it proves practical, the people who fish the Esopus will benefit. Fish will be larger and a lot more fun to catch. The chance of getting a larger trout will substantially improve.

It seems to me that the Federation President is very short-sighted. The Trophy Trout section of the Ausable River and the no Kill Fish for Fun portion of the Beaverkill are more heavily fished than the remainder of those streams. Why? Because people fish there since their chance of catching a larger fish is better. Larger fish also mean sturdier breeding stock. Samplings indicate that there is substantial carryover in the Ausable and Beaverkill and that there are breeding trout in the controlled areas. This all points to a self perpetuating trout population, which could include the Esopus. Catching a wild twelve-inch trout is a lot more fun than chasing the hatchery truck until there is a limit of eight-inch trout in the creek.

There is one more point which should not be overlooked. That is the economic increase brought to regions which have better fishing. I wouldn't drive to the Ausable and spend three or four days of fishing, eating in restaurants, and sleeping in motels if the fishing was not worthwhile. The same is true on the Beaverkill. Fishermen bring money and no one will deny that the Esopus valley can use extra income. If this experiment proves effective, our area will benefit ecologically and financially.

I am but one fisherman in Ulster County, but I cast my vote in favor of the DEC plan. Let all of us who want betterfishing go on record to improve the Esopus. fishery Let's not let it continue to degrade the way it has. The Esopus needs control and needs specially regulated sections to improve fishing. It is ttime we all try to preserve what we have, not to continue to tear it down through private selfishness. Let me catch three trout over twelve inches anytime. The thrill and the satisfaction more than compensates for the reduced limit.

Very truly yours,

Carpenter Stars as Kingston Clinches

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON — Kingston High School basketball coach Mike Rienzo paid the team from Poughkeepsie a guileless, honest compliment Tuesday night. He said, "I think Poughkeepsie is the second best team in the DCSL."

Rienzo said it as the victory chants were dying down in the Kate Walton Field House, cheers that began as his Maroons were closing in on a 76-63 victory and the school's first DCSL championship in a major sport.

"The kids played great," the coach continued. "They had to beat a team with the individual talent of Poughkeepsie."

None played better than Larry Carpenter, the cool guard who demolished the Pioneers with 27 points. Carpenter led the Maroons through a near flawless first half and to a 16 point lead. And he was there to hold his team together when the Pioneers surged to within four in the closing minutes.

"Carpenter was something else," agreed Poughkeepsie coach Bob Stauderman. "We couldn't stop him, and we tried everything. I never coached as hard as I did tonight."

Stauderman tried man-to-man, a zone, a press and a box-and-one, all to no avail. Periodically during the game he jumped up to yell, "You take him."

Carpenter was by no means alone on the court. All the Maroons played well, and it was only when their shooting cooled off in the third quarter that Poughkeepsie got back in the game.

When the shots fell away, Kingston didn't try to adjust its tactics and go inside. Poughkeepsie, behind Clifton Grimes and Tony Johnson, surged back. Spurred by a few KHS turnovers, the Pioneers trailed 64-60 with 2:55 to play.

Kingston was in danger then, but Carpenter eased the pressure with a short jumper from the right side. He then was fouled at the other end of the court.

Carpenter made the first and missed the second but teammate Corey Chambers beat everyone into the lane to bat the ball back up. Chambers missed but drew a foul and got another point out of the play.

Don Timbrouck moments later took all the heart out of the Pioneers' comeback as he came up with a loose ball, drove the length of the court, and slipped under Dino Larry for a lefthanded layup that put the Maroons back in front by ten.

Kingston shot the net apart in the first half, looking even better than its 51 per cent. Everybody hit . . . Chambers and Bill Cadden in the first quarter, Timbrouck and Daryl Mills in the second quarter squirmed loose for shots. Carpenter had 14 in the first half with barely a miss, and Stauderman was shaking his head.

The teams were playing on different levels. The KHS marksmanship overshadowed a defense which was just as efficient. Chambers, Bill Chaffin and Greg Glass did an impressive job of intimidating the Poughkeepsie shooters, and the Pioneers managed only 25 points in the first two quarters.

"I have to be proud of the way my kids came back," Stauderman said, "but Kingston just played super."

This is the 18th championship in Kingston's history, all the previous ones coming in the DUSO League. The last crown was won in the 1967-68 season.

KHS has one regular season game left at ketcham Friday and should be motivated by the upcoming sectionals. If a full 16-team field is not selected, the teams with the best record will get a first round bye.

LARRY CARPENTER RIDES SHOULDERS OF JUBILANT KHS FANS

Bernstein Sees Bright Side

WATERBURY, Conn. — Pete Eason and Larry Johnson, the whiz kids from Post Junior College who have scored over 2,000 points between them in their two year careeres, added 60 more to that total here Tuesday night to lead the Warriors to a 93-82 victory over Ulster County Community College. So how come UCCC coach Mike Bernstein thinks his team is now ready for the regionals?

"The kids snapped out of it," he said referring to Ulster's recent slump. "This is the first time in five games we've played the way we should. I'm pleased even despite the loss. Seventeen and five is nothing to sneeze at."

Bernstein did not feel very good at halftime. His troops were down by 16 points, had played flat and listless, and were run over by the free wheeling Post offense. With just under seven minutes left in the game things were slightly worse, and Bernstein drew a technical foul.

"We were down by 19 then, and I told them it was time to stop sluffing off. We had shot 26 percent in the first half, and if we didn't come out of it we were going to go right into the regionals like that," he said. Ulster meets Farmingdale Thursday in the tournament's first round.

The Senators responded and began to run their offense. Fletcher Abrams and Rachid Walker worked loose for the bulk of the shots, and Ulster started gaining. At the one minute mark, UCCC trailed, 82-80.

"We had five fouls called on us in the last minute," said Bernstein, "and when we looked up it was 93-82. But I'm not blaming the refs — if you play well you don't get yourself in that position."

Post, seeded sixth in the upcoming tournament to Ulster's fourth position, improved its record to 22-6. A bright spot for the Senators was Kim Anderson's 18 points, 14 in the first half.

Bernstein said, "if Kim can give us more of that off the bench, we're in good shape."

SPORTS \ TODAY

Tribe Gets Boog

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians, who last year employed six different men at first base with a minimum of success, today have a former American League most valuable player to fill that vacuum —Boog Powell.

Powell, who along with new Indians' manager Frank Robinson once formed one of baseball's most feared 1-2 slugging punches with Baltimore, was acquired from the Orioles Tuesday in a fourplayer trade that also saw 25year old lefthander Don Hood go to the Tribe. In exchange, the Tribe sent catcher Dave Duncan and rookie outfielder Alvin McGrew to Baltimore.

"I like the deal," said Robinson. "Hood will be given a chance to start. The trade also gives us a set lineup. With Powell at first base and John Ellis behind the plate, we have solidified two positions."

In addition to Ellis, the Indians' revolving door at first base last year also included Duncan, John Lowenstein, Chris Chambliss, Tommy McCraw and Ossie Blanco.

Said Indians general manager Phil Seghi of the trade: "It adds to us offensively and also gives us the pitcher we have been looking for. Our reports on Hood are all good. I also like to point out that Powell is one of the top fielding first baseman in the game."

Although the Indians, whose pitching staff relies heavily on the aging Perry brothers, Gaylord and Jim, had been seeking the young Hood ever since the baseball meetings in New Orleans last December, the 33-year old Powell, who fielded .996 in 102 games last year, was still the key to the deal.

Author of 303 home runs in 13 years with the Orioles, Powell was the American League's MVP in 1970 when he clouted 35 and drove in 114 runs. His production has fallen off the past few years, however, as witnessed by his '74 totals which showed a career-low 45 rbis with just 12 homers.

Still, the reunion with Robinson with whom he averaged 56 homers per year in six seasons with Baltimore, could stimulate a comeback in Powell's bat. The Indians are counting on that.

Happy Birthday to You

Wepner: Full-Time Boxer

By IRA FUSFELD

KERHONKSON — It's taken 11 years and 41 fights, but Chuck Wepner has become a full-time boxer.

"I've never been in a camp before," the Bayone, N.J., heavyweight told reporters Tuesday, his 35th birthday, at the official opening of his training headquarters at the Granit.

Yes, here's Chuck Wepner preparing for a bout for the first time without the interference of a regular job. And who's he going up against? Why none other than Muhammad Ali, for the heavyweight championship of the world, no less.

"I used to get up early in the morning, do my roadwork, go to work, come home and shower, change and then go to the gym at night and workout," Wepner related.

The last five years he'd been able to keep rather sane hours. Befor that he was employed by an electric company on the midnight to eight a.m. shift.

"There'd be many a night when I'd have a fight at night, then go home and change and go to work all night," he said.

In those day, $10,000 was a big purse and he'd bleed plenty for it . . . literally bleed.

"I don't worry about my eyes anymore," he said in answer to the $64 question about his notorious history as a blood-shedder. "I haven't had a bad cut in three and a half years. And anyway, Al is the best corner man in the world."

Al is Al Braverman and he proudly showed a group of early arriving writers his secret by using the palm of his hand to apply pressure to an imaginary wound. As for the treatment, Braverman would reveal only that he used three coagulants . . . which three he wasn't saying.

Braverman's main concern these days is getting his boy ready for Ali. A skin-scrape operation has apparently put an end to Wepner's days as a bleeder . . . he's won nine straight fights since going under the knife.

Wepner, free of that bugaboo, is obviously thrilled to be in a training camp surrounding.

"I love this camp," he said of the Granit facilities. "I'm doing plenty of running and boxing, getting plenty of rest and the food is great."

He likes it here so much, Wepner must guard againt overtraining. The New Jersey heavyweight champ has already sparred over 75 rounds and needs to lose only five more pounds before he's at his target weight of 217.

Wepner will carry a 30-9-2 record into the March 24th bout in Cleveland. He calls Ali's claims that he will avoid Wepner's eyes so as to keep him from bleedin "a lot of bleep" and says realistically, "look, the guy's a great fighter. He'll go for the face. He'll move around, slip, and throw jabs. But we'll keep the pressure on him. He'll do his thing early.

"I intend to KO him in a later round. We'll get him and we'll get him good. I intend to bring the heavyweight title back to New Jersey. They'll call me the second Cinderella Man. Jimmy Braddock was the first. On March 25 I'll be the heavyweight champion of the world."

Wepner even lies awake in bed in his room at the Granit and does a little daydreaming.

"I think about getting him in the ring and how it's going to sound when they either count him out or announce the decision in my favor."

Pretty hefty goals for a guy just recently turned full-time fighter.

Red Hook Belts Marlboro

'It Was a Complete Turnaround'

RED HOOK — Red Hook High, its back to the wall in the UCAL's Division II basketball race, stunned visiting Marlboro Tuesday night with a 75-60 victory to move back into a deadlock for first place with the Dukes.

In one other league game, Highland, Red Hook's next opponent, outscored Ellenville, 90-75. Rondout beat Onteora, 77-43, in a nonleaguer.

Marlboro had overpowered the Raiders in the teams' first meeting to take a one-game lead in the standings, but this game was just the reverse of that first contest. Red Hook stepped up the tempo, made its press work, and outscored the Dukes in every quarter.

Winning coach Rod Chando enumerated all the differences. "We executed our press, we made them run and wore them out, and we hit the high percentage shots. It was a complete turnaround."

The biggest contributor was Jim Merriken who made the Raider attack click with 30 points. Mike Gilfeather pumped in 18 more, and Jim Simmons canned 11.

"All five starters played well tonight," said Chando. Ron Coon gave us a nice floor game. He had nine steals and seven assists, and Joe Skelly did a job on Anthony Monroe when they came out of their zone."

Monroe led Marlboro with 18 points, but he didn't dominate the middle this time. The Raiders didn't give him time to get there.

"We shot 40-some per cent this time as compared to 25 per cent the first time we played, and in fouls it was 28 for us and six for them down there, and 11 to 15 up here," Chando continued. "Marlboro still shot well, but this time they had to work for their shots."

There was a lot of scoring in Ellenville, but Highland was doing most of it. Mike Serini had 22 points, and J.C. Gersch had 20 to lead the Big Blue.

There was also a lot of foul shooting.

"There were 24 fouls called on us and 25 called on Ellenville," said Highland coach Dick Becker. "And there were two technicals . . . it was that kind of game."

Highland also won the shooting match from the foul line, making 24 to the Ellies' 19. Jeff Gersch and Randy Kite finished with 15 points apiece for the winners. Ken Steele led Ellenville with 27.

Yanks opened Spring Training at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with Hunter the main attraction, but with relief pitcher Sparky Lyle stealing the show by reporting with his left arm and right leg in casts. Don't bet too excited though. Lyle, a reknowned practical joker, is OK. Hunter, meanwhile, said "I don't wait to be an individual, but just one of the guys. (UPI)

76ers Recoup Caldwell Jones

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia 76ers had their doubts about Caldwell Jones two years ago, but now they're banking on the 6-11 ABA center to carry them back into contention in the NBA.

Philadelphia general manager Pat Williams told a news conference Tuesday the 76ers had ended their search for a big man with the signing of Jones, who will join the NBA team in 1977 when his contract with San Diego of the ABA expires.

"We scouted Caldwell in several games this season," Williams said, "and we liked him. We think he's better than any of the centers we could get in this year's college draft."

Jones, who played collegiate ball at Albany (Ga.) State, was a second round draft choice of the 76ers in 1973 and spent four days in training camp with the NBA club. He failed to reach a contract agreement with then general manager Don DeJardin and later signed with San Diego.

Williams admitted that coach Gene Shue was not impressed with Jones during his brief stint with the 76ers.

"Gene didn't feel he had the strength to compete on a dayto-day basis in the NBA," Williams said. "But Caldwell went on a weight training program and put on 20 pounds over the summer and I think playing in the Baker League here really helped him."

The Baker League is a summer basketball league which serves as an off-season training and conditioning aid for professional and collegiate players.

Though Williams refused to disclose details of the contract, Jones reportedly signed for between $1.7 and $2 million. Williams said the contract was a "multi-year" pact covering "more than three and less than seven years."

Russell's Cool Put to Test

By STEVE WILSTEIN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Russell's famous cackling laughter was much in evidence after his Seattle SuperSonics edged the New York Knicks 102-101 Tuesday night but the man who led the Boston Celtics to 11 NBA championships in 13 years was hard-pressed to keep his humor when cross-examined by newsmen seeking to understand why he recently refused induction into the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Some newsmen and players have speculated that his decision was based on an idiosyncratic distaste for personal awards, others have suggested he was upset because of the racial imbalance of the Hall, located in Springfield, Mass.

"I never said I turned them down because of a racial issue," Russell said. "But I never said it wasn't. I just don't want to say anything about it. I would like to forget it. I have forgotten it and the only time I ever think about it is when someone asks me. I might change my mind in a year or three but I can't see anything that would prompt me to.

"There is a reason I can articulate but I don't want to. But I never make snap decisions. I don't have to."

After persistent questioning, the atmosphere grew a bit tense. Trying to cool things off, one newsman asked if Russell, a former television color analyst for the NBA's Game of the Week, might someday consider accepting placement in the Sportscaster Hall of Fame.

"That is quite inconceivable," he said, once more breaking out into that infectious cackle.

His scratchy beard flecked now with gray hairs, Russell said he is enjoying himself developing the SuperSonics.

"It's a completely different experience than when I coached Boston," he said. "It was almost a disaster here when I took over. But we're making progress. We've got a good chance to make the playoffs."

Seattle, in second place six games back of Golden State and 2½ ahead of Phoenix in the Pacific Division, beat New York for the first time in 14 games dating back to November, 1971.

"Thirteen defeats in a row," Russell mused. "Well 13's a lucky number."

Seattle's rookie-dominated squad made many mistakes against the Knicks but the Sonics outhustled New York in the final period and didn't lose their poise when it came time to sink the crucial free throws down the stretch.

Spencer Haywood was superb with 37 points but it was seven free throws in the final two minutes—two by Fred Brown with five seconds left, one by Talvin Skinner, two by Slick Watts and two by Tom Burleson—that gave the Sonics the victory after they trailed New York by nine points near the start of the period.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Houston Rockets stunned the Cleveland, 114-87, as Rudy Tomjanovich hit a season high 39 points and moved the Rockets to within a half-game of the second-place Cavaliers. Houston limited Cleveland ace, Bobby Smith, to 20-10 in the second half against the reserves.

Washington edged Buffalo 111-93; Kansas City-Omaha nipped Milwaukee 93-90; Chicago wipped New Orleans 120-105; Pheonix defeated Golden State 111-97 and Portland walloped Philadelphia 99-77.

Nate Archibald scored 37 points for the Kings.

Sawyers Sock Spacks

SPACKENKILL — "We're really playing good ball. It's too bad the season has to end."

That's the way Saugerties High School basketball coach Larry Marcus is feeling these days — a far cry from about a month ago — now that his Sawyer team has turned its season around.

Saugerties won its third game in its last four starts Tuesday afternoon by rallying to down Spackenkill, 51-40. The victory enabled the Sawyers to jump into a four-way tie for sixth place in the DCSL with a 5-12 record.

Saugerties was trailing 34-24 with with some 2:30 to play in the third quarter when John Speirs ignited a Sawyer comeback by hitting five straight points. With Marcus' team playing an aggressive man-toman defense, Spackenkill was held to six points over the last ten minutes and the visitors won going away.

"They weren't calling too many fouls so I called time out and told them to be aggressive," Marcus recalled.

Scott Hunter, who Marcus said played his best game of the season, and Speirs were Saugerties' best operators with 17 and 12 points respectively. Chris Luley also scored a dozen.

The Sawyers conclude the regular season Friday afternoon at Poughkeepsie and may get a bid to the Section One tournament despite their losing record now that the tourney is a 16-team affair. Only 18 teams make up the Sawyers's division.

"It would be interesting to see what happens," Marcus said.

Brian Hurley Gets Bye

NEW PALTZ — Brian Hurley of New Paltz drew a bye in the 160-pound Novice division of the Golden Gloves Tuesday night in New York City. He moves into the quarter finals on Thursday, March 6, at the Felt Forum.

Heavyweight Frank Paul fights tonight at the Forum and Richie Shur goes in the 126-pound class Thursday.

MHS Volleyball Win

Marlboro first beat New Paltz 5-15, 15-5 and 15-13, then turned back Rondout 15-4 and 15-7. Rondout defeated New Paltz 15-1 and 15-10.

Wolfpack Fading

NCAA champion North Carolina State may not get a chance to defend its title this year.

The Wolfpack has been struggling this season and if it continues to falter through the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs, it could mean last year's champions will be relegated to a minor tournament.

The slide continued Tuesday night as 13th-ranked North Carolina built up an early lead and held off sixth-ranked N.C. State 76-74. The victory was the first for North Carolina in its last 10 games against State and also marked the first time in three years that the Wolfpack had consecutive losses. N.C. State also lost on Saturday.

The ACC post-season tournament, which determines the NCAA representative, will be a dogfight between Maryland, North Carolina State, North Carolina and Clemson. The winner goes automatically to the NCAA regionals and a second team is picked on its season's record.

Shoul N.C. State fall in the ACC tournament, the defending champions could find themselves in the Commissioner's Conference Tourney or the National Invitation Tournament.

Freshman guard Phil Ford scored 19 of his 22 points in the first half and the Tar Heels then needed some last minute luck to hold on. David Thompson, who scored 32 points for State, hit with 27 seconds left to cut the Tar Heel lead to one point.

In other action involving ranked teams Tuesday night, Louisville (4) downed West Texas State 75-69, Penn (14) edged Temple 57-55 and Nevada-Las Vegas (16) beat NevadaReno 98-88.

In other games, Notre Dame drubbed Fordham 98-61, Boston College nipped Connecticut 6867, Harvard downed Dartmouth 87-83, Princeton topped Virginia 55-50, Providence swamped Villanova 84-67, St. John's (N.Y.) dumped Holy Cross 7265, Detroit stopped Southern Illinois 65-62, Drake ripped North Texas State 90-66, Pan American trampled Trinity (Tex.) 111-61, Arkansas clubbed Rice 86-51, Texas Tech whipped Texas A&M 73-63, Southern Methodist shaded Baylor 78-77 in overtime, and Texas edged Texas Christian 63-62.

Vassar Claims Record In Women's Basketball

ANNANDALE — The Vassar College women's basketball team is claiming a New York State — and possibly a national — record after its horrendous 111-16 victory over homestanding Bard College.

The 95-point victory margin is believed to be a state record and is being checked for possible national honors. Vassar racked up the huge total with 45 points in the first half and an unbelievable 66-6 margin in the second half.

Ellen Maxwell, Vassar's scoring ace, led with 34 points, Julie Rogers added 24, Karen Schmeider 23 and Cindy Hines 20. Kohn had 10 and Olefrud six for Bard.

"We didn't try to run up the score," said Coach Abby Scheib of the Vassar team. "We were down to seven players because of illness and injuries and we just kept shuffling the players in and out."

Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, hit hard by profit taking and dismal news recently, opened lower today in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which has lost more than 30 points in the past two sessions, was off 0.63 at 718.55 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 196 to 87, among the 422 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover amounted to around 480,000 shares.

Most observers agreed profit taking of the past two sessions was overdue in light of the market's recent gains. They said investors now are showing increased concern over the deepening recesssion.

Some first quarter earnings have been disappointing and a number of firms have omitted or reduced dividends, discouraging investors. Also, a decline in interest rates, which played a major role in the new year rally, appeared to have leveled off.

County Meeting Tonight

KINGSTON — The Ulster County Legislature is expected to vote tonight for or against ratification of a new contract with the county's employes, a contract tentatively agreed to over the weekend by the legislature's negotiating team and the negotiating team of the Ulster County Civil Service Employees Association (UCCSEA) and signed by representatives of the two teams Monday.

The pact was ratified by the UCCSEA Monday night by a nearly unanimous vote, and Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-8th District) said today that he expected the county to vote for ratification. Savago said details of the pact, so far unreleased, would be available after the executive session tonight, which is scheduled for 7:30 in the County Office Building.

Rates Down, but . . .

Mortgage rates for home loans are coming down, but there are few buyers, a mortgage loan expert says. There's too much skepticism around.

"People just aren't buying," said Jim Thompson, an official of the U.S. Savings and Home League in Chicago, a trade association representing 4,600 people.

He said funds are pouring into savings accounts at savings and loan institutions, major mortgage lenders, but "we have no demand for mortgages to take up the flow."

He predicted mortgage rates, which peaked as high as 11 per cent in September under the tight money policy of the Federal Reserve, would decline to 8¼ per cent or 8½ per cent "at the outside" this year.

In Washington, Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve, said the Fed's effort to make more and easier credit available for business and consumer borrowing is beginning to show results.

But Burns rejected suggestions the Fed under take massive stimulation of the economy through an 8 or 10 per cent increase in the nation's money supply — the amount on deposit in checking accounts plus currency in circulation.

"We have no intention of doing that — not as long as I am chairman," Burns told the Senate Banking Committee. "We can do more. We can do a lot more. We can even wreck this country. But we're not going to do it, senator."

"The menace of inflation is by no means behind us," Burns said in opposition to a resolution that would direct the Fed to pour billions more into the economy to fight the recession.

In other developments:

American Motors joined General Motors in cutting prices on some models to spur sales once cash rebates end Friday. AMC's announcement came shortly after the industry reported mid-February new car sales missed matching last year's level by only 210 cars. GM's sales were up 16 per cent.

New Car Act

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit's automakers are lifting the curtain on a new act to follow their successful cash rebates performance. It features "stripped" models and lower prices.

American Motors Tuesday announced cuts of $16 to $198 on 11 General Motors Corp. Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. are expected to lower selected prices by the time cash rebates of $200 to $600 end Friday.

The decision to lower prices, mainly through removal of some equipment which is now standard, is an admission by Detroit that too many options have been put on cars, making prices higher than buyers are willing to pay.

Rather than actually cutting prices, which the auto companies say they cannot afford, they are removing equipment and leaving it up to customers to decide if items such as tachometers, cigar lighters and steel-belted radial tires are really needed.

Like GM, AMC said it would delete some standard equipment, mainly steel-belted radial tires, to bring base prices down. But unlike GM, AMC is actually reducing prices of some option packages.

The biggest cut of $198 on the Gremlin "X" model was accomplished by making some of the equipment in the package optional. It will drop the base price of the Gremlin "X" from $3,197 to $2,999.

Eagles Make Move

SAUGERTIES

Cementon S.C.'s lead-footed pursuit of Doggies F Troop was further thwated last week when a talon-ted Golden Eagles squad, fighting for a playoff berth in the Saugerties Dartball League, pecked out a solitary, but important victory.

The loss dropped Cementon three full games behind the powerful Doggies, who gave their rabid fans reasons to howl with a trio of victories over arm-weary Trinity.

Katsbaan Apaches, meanwhile, continue to lurk in the shadows of third place, just five games off the pace. Shouting a hearty "Hi-Ho-Highwoods," they rode off into the sunset with three easy wins last week.

In other games last week Centerville Vols doused West Camp, 2-1 and the Malden-West Camp Vols took two of three from Centerville.

1974 Woman of Year, Principal Announces Her Resignation

The Northern Dutchess Business and Professional Women's Club's 1974 Woman of the Year, Mrs. Jeannette Betts Dodd, who has been principal of the Rhinebeck Country School from its inception in 1954, has announced her resignation.

During the last 20 years , Mrs. Dodd has been instrumental in all phases of the Country School's development. She has also been active in numerous community projects, probably the most well-known effort being her work for The United Way, from whom she received the first Recognition of Human Needs Award given in Dutchess County. Dutchess County has benefitted from her many-faceted personal, civic, and professional contributions.

This month a farewell luncheon was given in her honor at the Beekman Arms by her co-workers, who presented her with a gold and jade bracelet and pin set.

Last year the Academic Faculty presented her with a sculpture in appreciation of her twentieth year as the school principal. Two years ago she was the recipient of the Woman-At-Large Civic Humanitarian award from the City Club of Albany, Inc.

Mrs. Dodd's professional career has included positions in the public relations, administrative, and educational fields in several states, abroad, and Washington, D.C. Her current plans include a college professorship. She is continuing her membership in local organizations and whenever possible will participate in activities benefitting the community.

Fresh produce . . . . a Top Consumer Food Buy

WASHINGTON, D.C.— For the homemaker who is trying to hold the line on food expenditures, fresh fruits and vegetables should head the shopping list.

Moreover, while fresh produce may be lower in cost than the same item in processed state, it is often a better nutritional value as well.

Through careful comparison shopping, the consumer can purchase greater food value for her money. The method is to determine the comparative portion cost for the same item fresh, canned and frozen.

According to Bernard J. Imming, president, United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, in nearly every instance the fresh item will prove to be the best value.

Here are specific examples of how to make this comparison. In early February, fresh carrots were priced at 59 cents for a two pound bag in a Washing ton, D. C. supermarket. A half-cup of fresh cooked carrots would cost 7.4 cents.

The same half-cup portion of carrots from a 15-ounce store brand can at 47 cents would cost 11.7 cents. Bought in the 16-ounce store brand frozen package which was priced at 47 cents, the half-cup serving would cost 9.4 cents.

Here are other comparisons: A half-cup serving of fresh sweetpotatoes or "yams" would cost 6 cents, 10 cents canned, and 19 cents frozen. The cost of serving a half-cup of mushrooms would cost 27 cents fresh, 36 cents canned and 39 cents frozen. And acorn squash would have cost 6 cents for a half-cup portion fresh and 10 cents frozen.

As a general rule, consumers can make a quick caculation to determine comparative costs per portion of any fruit or vegetable. A one-pound can of a vetetable will contain about two cups, including liquid. The cost of a half-cup serving would be one-fourth the shelf price.

Most packages of frozen vegetables contain nine or ten ounces, or almost three half-cups. The per portion cost would then be one-third the shelf price.

In most instances , one pound of raw vegetables usually provides between three to five half-cup portions. Using four as an average, the per-serving cost would almost always be one-fourth of the per-pound price. The major exceptions are greens such as kale and collards which provide from eight to twelve half-cup servings per pound.

Imming also observed that fresh vegetables and fruits often are a better buy on more than price alone. Fresh produce usually has a nutritional advantage, and thus constitutes better value for money spent.

"Fresh vegetables and fresh fruit cooked properly in the home or eaten rew are a good food value because of the amounts of essential vitamins, minerals and other nutrients they provide. And their contribution to the essential daily amount of bulk our bodies require is still nother value factor," Imming said.

"Today, when shoppers have to make every cent of their food budget count to provide balanced, flavorful meals, fresh produce should top the weekly shopping list," he concluded.

Doing The Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a dear friend I have known for two years. My other friends have accepted her as well and have invited her to luncheons.

She has told me that she now owes invitations to these gals and is repaying them by having a bridge party for them, but I was not invited. Am I being too sensitive in feeling that I am being slighted? Is this considered poor etiquette?

Roberta

Dear Roberta: I do think you are making the proverbial mountain out of a molehill. Your friend should certainly repay your kindness by entertaining you, but she need not include you each and every time she has a party.

If you have enjoyed her hospitality on other occasions, she has paid her debt to you.

It appears that she is now safely established in your circle of friends, and surely you all give parties that include some of the members one time and others at another time.

Of course, if she has not invited you to her home, you have every right to be hurt, but I doubt that that is the case.

Dear Mrs. Post: For a wedding gift, I received a pair of brandy snifters. Neither my husband nor I ever drank brandy. Could I use one of them as an ornament on a cocktail table? Have you any other suggestions about what I might do with them?

Ann

Dear Ann: Two brandy snifters are not much use if neither of you drink it, and your friends don't like it, either.

But snifters — if they are fairly large — make very attractive terrariums. Plant a little ivy, a cactus and one or two other small plants inside the glass and use the snifters as a pair of decorations on your mantel. If you plant inside only one, you may use it on the coffee table.

For suggestions about to whom, when, how and what to give, you will find my booklet, "Gifts and Giving," most helpful. To get a copy, send 50¢ in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

Mom Hankers For Daughter's Hubby

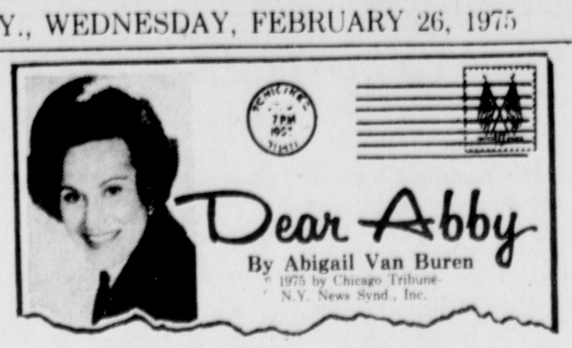

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I'm crazy, but I'm in love with my son-in-law. Lenny is 22, and he's in love with me. (I'm 37.)

It all started when I went to stay at my daughter's house while she was at the hospital having a baby. (She has one child, a year old.)

I don't know how it happened, Abby, but all at once Lenny hugged me, and before I knew it, I was in his arms and we were kissing like a couple of teen-agers. I've never been so thrilled in all my life. We went the limit, and now I don't think I can live without him. Lenny says he feels the same way about me. He says the difference in our ages doesn't mean a thing to him. Me either. In fact this 22-year-old kid is more of a man than my husband, who is 42.

I would be willing to go anywhere in the world with Lenny, but I don't want to hurt my daughter. Also I have a husband and five other kids at home. Please give me some advice, but don't tell me to give up Lenny. I'm too far gone on him.

SEEING STARS

DEAR SEEING: You had better quit star-gazing and get back to earth. Your daughter and her children need Lenny. And you have a husband and five children who need you. It may have been a thrilling, new, physical experience, but it's not the kind of stuff of which lasting marriages are made. Cool it, Mom.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps you can settle a bitter dispute in our family. For the past 14 years, my brother has been running for a local county office on the Republican ticket. A few years ago, my sister's husband got interested in politics, too. Meanwhile, every two years my brother kept filing for this office, thinking that eventually he would win. (He didn't.)

Last April, my brother-in-law decided to run on the Democratic ticket for the same office my brother had been running for for so many years. Well, my brother-in-law won!

I said it was unethical for my brother-in-law to have opposed my brother for that office. I was challenged to prove that it was unethical, and I could only say that it is an unwritten law.

I need your help in settling this dispute, Abby.

MISS INBETWEEN

DEAR MISS: Unwritten laws aren't worth the paper they aren't written on; furthermore, even though it undoubtedly strained family relations, there is nothing "unethical" about it.

DEAR ABBY: I was married to a man for 13 years, and we had three children. After we were divorced I tried to keep in touch with my ex-husband's parents because I wanted my children to know their parental grandparents even though I had to initiate all the meetings. (I used to take the kids on the bus. My in-laws had a car and it would have been easier for them to come to me, but I didn't let that stop me.)

Well, I finally met a very nice man who married me and adopted my children. Their last name was legally changed to his. When my ex-in-laws heard the news they told me that since my children no longer had their last name, they didn't consider them their grandchildren — so they didn't care to see them again.

How about that?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Unreal! It's their loss.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Lincoln Center Sampler of Programs Set for Thursday at Poughkeepsie

The Dutchess County Board of Cooperative Educational Services will present the Lincoln Center Sampler of its student programs Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at the Spackenkill High School auditorium, Spackenkill Road, Poughkeepsie.

This sampler is intended to acquaint local school districts with the kind of offerings in music, dance, drama, opera, and film that are now being used in more than 90 schools throughout New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

The Lincoln Center Student Program was established 13 years ago in an effort to involve as many young people and teachers as possible with performances and artists of high professional caliber so that the artistic experience becomes a vital part of their education. The program involves all the member institutions of Linconln Center and is currently offering in-school performances and workshops for intermediate, junior, and senior high schools in most states in the northeast.

The program for this sampler will include: selections by members of the New York City Ballet; the Juilliard Singers and two graduates from the Drama Division of the Juilliard School.

Pre-School Parent Workshop

Due to a cancellation because of inclement weather, the second in a series of Pre-School Parent Workshops for West Hurley parents has been re-scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m. in the West Hurley School cafeteria.

The program for the evening will be a panel discussion. Participating will be Joseph Amplo, West Hurley School psychologist, who will discuss "Behavior of the Pre-school Child and Typical Problems Parents Face;" Mrs. Joyce Goodrich, West Hurley School kindergarten teacher whose topic will be "Kindergarten Readiness, Testing, Screening and Special Services;" and Mrs. Marilyn Mitchell, public health nurse, who will discuss "Agencies and Services available in Ulster County for Pre-School children and Parents."

The next workshop is scheduled for Thursday, Mar. 6 at which time a panel discussion by area nursery school representatives is planned. Details will be announced.

DAR Holds Open House

Observing its plans for the Bi-Centennial and Washington's Birthday on Saturday, Feb. 22, Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held Open House for members and guests from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Chapter House.

On display was a varied collection of interesting family treasures, planned and described by the Mmes. Warren A. Russell, Chapter regent, and Wilfred Robinson, second vice regent and event chairman.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, first vice regent, and her committee.

Area Scouters Plan New Mexico Trip

Several Senior Boy Scouts from Ulster County are planning a trip to Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base located in New Mexico. They plan to go the latter part of July.

The boys, and their respective troops are: Bill Ammerman, Troop 20 Hurley; Steve Benz, Troop 20 Hurley; Jeff Betz, Troop 20 Hurley; Mike Bradley, Troop 26 Port Ewen; Randy Crego, Troop 26 Port Ewen; John Falatyn, Troop 20 Hurley; Tim Foster, Troop 20 Hurley; Scott Taylor, Troop 72 New Paltz; Steve Tremper, Troop 26 ort Ewen; Bruce Vilches, Troop 20 Hurley and Doug Whitaker, Scoutmaster Troop 20 Hurley.

The Scouts have planned a series of fund-raising events to help defray the cost of the trip which amounts to about $400 per boy. Their first effort was a ping-a-thon held last November at the Montgomery Ward store. The boys raised more thian $300 during their 100 hours of continuous ping-pong. The February fund-raiser is a card party run by the Mothers Club planned for Thursday, Feb. 27, at 8 p. m. at the Hurley Reformed Church located just off Route 209 in Hurley.

Future events scheduled are a roast beef dinner in March, a car wash in April, an Old movies Night in May and a Flea Market in June.

Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base is a 137,493-acre site located at Cimarron, New Mexico. Program activities include archeology, geology and earth sciences. In the Mount Baldy area where the scouts will be camping, there are several gold mines that were working as late as 1937-1938. The boys will undoubtedly try their hand at panning for old.

Arthur Betz is coordinator for the trip. Betz is in the process of making arrangements for the transportation, travel accommodations, meals, and sightseeing stops en route.

State Bar Wants Review

ALBANY

Concerned with the growing problem of teenage violence and its effect upon public safety, the New York State Bar Association's criminal justice section has called for a complete review of laws goveerning acts of juveniles.

At its recent annual meeting, the criminlal justice section requested its Committee on Revision of the Criminal Law—headed by Hortense F. Mound of New York City—to "review esisting legal controls and to make recommendations for revision of the law governing acts of juveniles which would be serious offenses if committed by adults."

According to Ms. Mound, teenagers who commit violent acts such as rape, robbery and homicide are given special status and are immune from the usual controls of the criminal law. Under the Family Court Act, persons under 16 are subject to special treatment which virtually limits the placement of offenders, regardless of the seriousness of their act, to a period of 18 months in a youth facility. Furthermore, under the law, they are usually released at the discretion of the administrators before the 18-month period has elapsed according to Ms. Mound.

"Our study of the entire juvenile crime problem will be followed by specific suggestions for new legislation in this area," Ms. Mound said.

Transport Authority Urged

MIDDLETOWN

Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th District) has urged state legislators to form a regional transportation authority for the Mid-Hudson Valley.

He said he had appealed to a number of area legislators "to join together in bringing about such a worthy program."

"There is an increasing need for more adequate mass transportation facilities in our fast growing region. The Metropolitian Transportation Authority (MTA) has not responded to that need," Gilman said. "Our region needs an authority that is locally controlled and locally concerned."

Gilman said that "although we are living in one of the fastest growing regions of our state, the MTA thinks of our region only as an afterthought. A regional authority could give us the kind of local leadership and local control that we need."

"A regional transportation authority would have the responsibility for planning and implementing proposals for improving mass transportation in the Mid-Hudson region," Gilman said. "The MTA is too concerend and involved with New York City subways and buses to respond to our needs."

Transport Expert Seeking Subsidy For Mass Transit System

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state Senate's transportation expert is pressing ahead today with a subsidy plan for mass transit systems throughout the state in the wake of pleas from local officials for aid to run buses, subways and commuter trains.

Sen. John D. Caemmerer, REast Williston, said at the conclusion of a day-long hearing by his Select Legislative Committee on Transportation Tuesday that it was obvious that "public transportation ... can no longer be financed by the public alone."

Bringing the strongest warning of impending mass transit disaster to the hearing was David L. Yunich, chairman of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority. Yunich told the legislators that unless the MTA receives $67 million in emergency aid immediately, it will not be able to operate beyond a week from Thursday.

Caemmerer, a Long Island Republican, has proposed a bill calling for a total of $300 million in state and local aid to mass transit systems statewide. Under his proposal, the state would put up $200 million and the local governments would provide $100 million.

Caemmerer and State Transportation Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler disagreed rather sharply, however, over the manner of combining state and local aid. Schuler said he would prefer a 50-50 split but would not mandate participation by the local governments. Under Caemmerer's proposal, the state would pay $2 for every $1 provided by local governments but the local governments would be required to participate.

In his testimony, Schuler repeated an earlier forecast of deficits totaling $640 million this year for the mass transit systems statewide and said the only way to make up the deficiency would be through a combination of local, state and federal subsidies.

Chester R. Hardt, a former Republican assemblyman now heading up the Niagara Frontier Transportation Authority, also took sharp exception to several of Schuler's proposals. Noting that the NFTA is one of the few transit operations able to expand operations, increase bus runs and cut fares in the past year, Hardt noted that the authorities were in a better position to determine their own operations than the state DOT.

Hardt also said that, if local governments were given the power to negotiate their share of the subsidy, "the experience of the past year indicates some counties will not participate on a voluntary basis or will do so only with such conditions as to adversely impact current operations."

Yunich called for immediate passage of a bill already introduced to loan the MTA $45 million and to allow it to retain $22 million in other funds.

Bus and subway operations, he said, would be faced with a $30 million shortage even if the present levels of aid are maintained in the coming year. To cover the gap, he said, would require an increase in the basic 35-cent fare to 40 cents on April 1 if additional funds are not forthcoming.

Commuter railroads would have a shortage of $19.6 million under current levels of subisdy, Yunich said, and added that would require an increase of 30 per cent in ticket costs by April 1.

He noted that MTA received $180 million in state and local subsidies last year and would need at least $240 million in the coming fiscal year beginning April 1.

In 1976, Yunich said, the MTA will need at least $366.9 million in state and local subsidies or fares on buses and subways would go to 60 cents next Jan. 1. The commuter rail lines would need an additional $53.6 million or fares would climb by 67 per cent over current levels.

That would increase the current average of $1.41 a ride to $2.35 and, for example, the monthly commutation ticket from White Plains to Grand Central Terminal would be boosted from $44 to $73.50 while the Huntington to Penn Station commutation book would be increased from $58.35 to $97.50.

Under Caemmerer's proposal, $180 million of the state subsidy would go to the MTA and $20 million to all other transit systems in the state.

Caemmerer's formula calls for New York City and the counties served by the MTA to contribute $90 million. Counties served by other transit systems would contribute $10 million. The proposal calls for a prorated share based on usage and costs.

For example, in the MTA area, New York City would pay 6.4 per cent, Nassau County, 39.4 per cent; Suffolk, 25.4; Westchester, 24.9; Dutchess, 1.3; Putnam, 1.3; Rockland, .8, and Orange, .5.

Upstate, Albany would pay 56.1 per cent of the $740,000 local subsidy to the four-county Capital District Transportation Authority. Rensselaer would pay 23.3; Saratoga, 4.1, and Schenectady, 16.5.

In the Central New York Regional Transportation District, Onondaga County would provide 90.5 per cent of the $640,000 local government subsidy; Cayuga, 6.1, and Oswego, 3.4.

For the Rochester-Genesee Regional Transportation District, Monroe would put in 96 per cent of the $950,000 local government share; Genesee, 1.9 per cent; Wayne, 1.1, and Livingston, 1 per cent.

In the Niagara Frontier Transportation District, Erie County would pay 89.2 per cent of the $1.75 million local share, and Niagara would contribute 10.8 per cent.

USRA Recommends Elimination of Main Line

By UPI

New York State will loose one of the three competing rail routes between the metropolitan New York area and Buffalo if Congress approves recommendations made today by the United States Railway Association.

The USRA's Preliminary System Plan also calls for the elimination of more than 700 miles of branch lines in New York, and suggests that an additional 137 miles must be analysed further before their fate can be determined.

The plan recommends the elimination of most of the Lehigh Valley's main line from Waverly on the Southern Tier to the Buffalo area. It also proposes that Erie Lackawanna Railway line from Buffalo to Binghamton and Northern New Jersey be transferred to either the Norfolk & Western or the Chessie System. This would have the effect of maintaining at least one trunk line alternative to the new government-backed Consolidated Rail Corp. (ConRail) which will take over the Penn Central main lines serving the New York metropolitan area.

The proposed transfer of the eastern portion of the Erie Lackawanna main line to a solvent carrier also assures that the small, but profitable, Delaware & Hudson Railway will have access to an independent east-west route at Binghamton. The USRA also suggests that the D&H be granted operating rights between the Scranton, Pa., area and Allentown, Pa., to provide a north-south competitive route. In Allentown, a connection would be made with the Chessie System.

One of the most controversial aspects of the USRA proposal is the projected elimination of many secondary lines. Thirtyfour segments of the Penn Central and Lehigh Valley are threatened with abandonment, including the LV's Ithaca Branch, serving a major generating station of New York State Electric & Gas Co. Other lines recommended for exclusion from ConRail include: The Geneva-Seneca Falls-Auburn branch of Penn Central; The 83-mile Catskill Mountain Branch from Kingston to Stamford and Bloomville (Delaware County); the West Shore line from Rotterdam Junction, west of Schenectady, to Canajoharie, and major portions of the Penn Central's secondary route between Oswego, Rochester and Niagara Falls.

One line that could be ripped up as a result of USRA's conclusions is the Lehigh Valley branch from Sayre, Pa. to Owego, Moravia and Cortland. This line was the first branch to receive rehabilitation aid from the State Department of Transportation under the rail preservation program passed during the last session of the legislature. The state granted $800,000 to the Lehigh Valle y to allow necessary track repairs to be made.

In terms of passenger serice, the USRA recommends that additional trains be added on the New York-Albany-SyracuseBuffalo route, with frequency being increased to seven round trips between Albany and New York, four round trips on the Albany-Syracuse portion of the corridor and three round trips on the Buffalo-Syracuse portion. It also recommends that twicedaily passenger service be restored between Buffalo and Cleveland.

The Penn Central main line from Selkirk, south of Albany, westward to Buffalo and Cleveland is recommended for complete rehabilitiation which will be financed by USRA. Segments of this route are among the top 20 line segments in terms of rehabilitation priority in the entire ConRail system. The plan also recommends that the line of the bankrupt Lehigh & Hudson River Railway between Maybrook in Orange County and Phillipsburg, N.J., be upgraded and rehabilitated to serve as part of a principal ConRail mainline route between Albany and the south.

UCCC Trustees Oppose Carey Proposal on Upstate College Funds

STONE RIDGE

Members of the Board of Trustees of Ulster County Community College Tuesday night passed a resolution opposing Governor Hugh Carey's proposal to decrease state aid for upstate community colleges because it would place an increased burden on local taxpayers and students.

Instead, they endorsed a recommendation by the State University's Trustees for the distribution of state aid for community colleges in the 1975-76 fiscal year.

The Ulster trustees also voiced opposition to Carey's proposal to increase state aid to community colleges in New York City at the expense of upstate community colleges.

Copies of the resolution are being forwarded to the Ulster County Legislature and local representatives of the State Legislature, including Assemblymen Maurice Hinchey and Emeel Betros and State Senators Edwyn Mason and Richard Schermerhorn.

UCCC President, Robert T. Brown, was directed to meet with the local representatives of the State Legislature to seek their support for the resolution.

The resolution noted that Ulster County's share of the college's operating budget has increased from 27 to 33 percent of the total budget since 1970-71, whereas state aid has regressed from 37 to 32 percent of the total budget.

The Trustees reported that Governor Carey's proposed state aid package for community colleges would provide less state aid for UCCC for 1975-76 than budgeted now. "The Governor's proposal continues to place more of a burden on the local taxpayer and students and less on the state for Ulster County Community College," the trustees added. The Ulster trustees reported that the state aid distribution proposal of the State University's trustees "is designed to alleviate these inequities."

The state provided 33 percent support to community colleges from 1948 to 1970, when the Governor and Legislature amended the formula to provide up to 40 per cent support for those institutions that became "full opportunity plan" colleges. Those were colleges which would guarantee admission to all immediate high school graduates and returning veterans from their sponsorship area.

Ulster County Comminity College is one of these "full opportunity plan" colleges, but according to a college spokesman has never received 40 percent of the state aid.

Unfortunately, restrictions applied to that formula by the state in each succeeding year since 1970 have caused the statewide average support level to frop consistently placing a greater burden on local sponsors.

Rondout Retains BOCES System

By CARL GRAHAM

KYSERIKE

The Rondout Valley Board of Education voted Tuesday night to continue farming its accounting work out to Ulster County BOCES for anothr year.

The board, plagued by accounting machine problems for several years, bought a machine in 1973 to handle district accounting, but returned it to the manufacturer at the end of the 1973-74 school year when it failed to work properly. The board voted at that time to join the BOCES computerized program for one year and investigate the possibility of purchasing a new machine.

Wayne Kelder, board president, said the board was now in a position where it must go to BOCES because even if a new mcahine could be purchased now there would not be enough time to set up programs for the coming year. The vote to renew with BOCES was 6-1 with Julian Bartle opposed. He said he favored keeping an internal accounting system. The board, beginning next fall, will investigte the relative merits and costs of the BOCES and internal methods of handling the district's business.

After a lengthy discussion, the board voted to leave where it is the present $5,000 maximum income for persons over 65 seeking the 50 percent property tax exemption. Changes in the state law now permit maximums up to $6,500.

Bartle opposed raising the limit, saying that many persons under 65 in Ulster County make less than $6,500 a year, and that raising exemptions would work a hardship on them. He said that raising the maximum from $3,500 to $5,000 had increased taxes for others by about $2.65 per thousand of assessed valuation. The vote was unanimous.

The board voted to deny the request of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Chiotis of Cedar Drive, Kerhonkson, who asked that a school bus be routed by their door to pick up their first grader. Charles Ludlow, chairman of the Transportation Committee, said he had investigated, that the child lived only one-quarter mile from the bus pickup point, and that the committee saw no reason to accede to the request, which it had turned down once previously.

A woman who identified herself as the parent of a child in the Accord Elementary School asked the board to consider installing lavatories in the temporary building next to the school, where two fourth grade sections and the library are located. The building now has drinking water but no lavatory facilities.

Robert Robertaccio, superintendent of schools, said the district had always considered the building temporary and noted that elementary enrollement was declining. The board agreed to take the request under advisement and to investigage.

In other action, the board:

•tAuthorized Lee Comeau, business administrator, to borrow up to $325,000 to cover expenses from March 1 until May 15, when the next state aid payment is due.

•tApproved the senior class trip to Quebec City for May 2-3.

•tAccepted the resignation of Harry Snyder, general music instructor at the middle school; appointed Mrs. Karen Blocker to be a high school business teacher replacing Frank McCann, who retired; and granted Mrs. Elsie Locke, a teacher aide at the middle school, an unpaid leave of absence from Feb. 24-28.

Bicentennial Calendar Shaping Up

KINGSTON

Kingston's calendar of bicentennial-related activities is rapidly taking shape, with many local organizations registering dates from now through 1977 with the Kingston Bicentennial Commission.

Edward Levine, commission chairman, said that dates will be put on a master calendar to be compiled at a public meeting Thursday, Feb. 27, and later made available for public information and publicity purposes.

The meeting, originally scheduled at the Kingston City Hall, was shifted to John A. Coleman High School on Hurley Avenue after the council chambers at City Hall were preempted for a public hearing.

Levine, emphasizing that "this is everybody's bicentennial," invited all organizations to participate and to attend the meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m.

Among the events already scheduled or in advanced planning stages:

• April 20 — Annual commemoration of adoption and proclamation of the state's first constitution, on the Court House steps in Kingston.

• April 29-May 1 — Annual Kingston Lions Club Exposition and Home Show at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue.

• May-September — Saturday guided tours of the Old Dutch Church at 2 and 4 p.m. Every third Thursday during these months the Friends of Historic Kingston will conduct walking tours of the stockade area, beginning at 2 p.m. at the Governor Clinton Hotel. 'On-Site' Blood Drawing Slated

KINGSTON

Continuing efforts to make convenience a by-word for those group donors of blood and their employers has led to announcement this week that the first on-site blood drawing conducted by the Ulster County Blood Bank will take place Friday at Benedictine Hospital.

In making the announcement, Arthur C. Chipp, president of the Ulster County Blood Bank, explained that "because of the special nature of the hospital employe's work, time taken from specific duties and positions must be kept at a minimum. By providing this service at the place of the donor's employment we believe all concerned will benefit proportionately," he said.

Benedictine President Sister Mary Charles has volunteered to be the first blood donor at Friday's drawing.

Chipp recalled that Benedictine Hospital enrolled in the Ulster County Blood Bank's Program Sept. 4, 1973. The program provides the employes with many benefits to the individual as well as their dependent families.

Chipp also noted that any organization, institution, firm, association or corporation, including municipal corporations operating in Ulster County may enroll in a group program.

Arrangements may be made for a speaker representative of the Blood Bank to present details of the group program and include a color film. Anyone interested may contact the Blood Bank Office in the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Off-Duty Patrolman, In Accident With 'Car'

KINGSTON

An off-duty city patrolman and a passenger in his car were injured early today when their auto collided with a patrol car responding to a call for assistance from the sheriff's department.

City police said off-duty Patrolman William Wiegert, 29, was in his private car and was talking with Patrolman John Schatzel and a second patrolman who were on duty in a city police car shortly after 1 a.m. when Schatzel received a request for assistance at the corner of Wurts and Abeel Streets.

The patrol car started on its way and Wiegert followed, police said. At the corner of Wurts and Spring Streets the patrol car slowed to make a turn and the Wiegert auto collided with the rear of the police vehicle, authorities said.

Wiegert and a passenger in his car, Margaret Tucker, 21, were both taken to Kingston Hospital following the crash. Wiegert was treated and released. The woman was admitted and was listed in satisfactory condition today.

Neither on-duty patrolman was reported injured, and the patrol car was not reported badly damaged. No tickets were issued.

The initial call for assistance was on a routine traffic check, according to sheriff's deputies.

Elsewhere, two teenagers walking on Plattekill Drive in Mt. Marion Park Tuesday afternoon were injured when struck by a car operated by William Buckman, 17, of Mt. Marion Park, Saugerties Town Police said.

The teens—Louise Beck, 16, and Thomas Maloney, 17, both of Mt. Marion Park—were taken to Benedictine Hospital. Maloney was treated and released. The girl was admitted and was listed in fair condition today.

Buckman was ticketed for reckless driving, failure to keep right and speed not reasonable.

Meanwhile, Robert Holmes, 25, of Albany was hospitalized Tuesday after his car ran off Route 209 in Stone Ridge and struck a tree. Holmes was listed in fair condition today at the Benedictine Hospital. No tickets were issued in the 5:10 p.m. crash.

Saudis in Washington and Talking Business

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saudi Arabian officials are here to discuss business prospects, but Treasury Department officials say the talks will avoid official mention of high oil prices and the Arab boycott of firms doing business with Israel.

Sheikh Mohammed Abal Khail, the Saudi Minister for Finance and National Economy, arrived late Tuesday for talks with Treasury Secretary William E. Simon at the two day U.S.-Saudi Arabian Economic Commission conference.

Simon said in an announcement Tuesday that "These meetings are an important step in our mutual efforts to develop a new dimension of economic cooperation between the Saudi Arabian and American governments and private sectors."

Other Treasury officials told reporters, however, that the sensitive issues of high oil prices and the Arab boycott would be discussed only in private meetings, if at all. Neither issue is on the official agenda, an official said.

The United States hopes to help Saudi Arabia diversify its economy as fast as possible, and this is the main intent of the conference.

The conference is expected to result in establishment of technical assistance programs for vocational training, expansion of Saudi Arabian agriculture through water resource projects and creation of a scientific center in Saudi Arabia. American officials also hope to clarify guidelines for foreign investment in the United States, particularly by Arab countries and Iran.

"Historically we have welcomed foreign investment in the United States with a minimum of restrictions," a Treasury official said. "But we have felt that with regard to the rapid rise in the price of oil and the shift of international assets, this should be reviewed."

But, he said, "No one anticipates a major shift away from the policy of direct foreign investment."

FUNERAL NOTICES

Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Arthur W. Richter, who passed away one year ago February 26, 1974.
What would we give to see your smile
And sit and talk with you awhile.
Day and night we think of you.
The things we used to say and do.
The blow was sudden, the shock severe.
To part with you, so kind and dear.
We wonder why you had to die,
Without a chance to say goodbye.
Only God knows how much we miss you,
This sad and lonely year,
Our love is always with you as we have you in our hearts so dear.
Missed so very much,
Wife,

County Parking Funds

KINGSTON

Zeeh's report noted that more space was available in the lot now that the Sheriff's Department had moved to Golden Hill, and he commended the County's highway department for its cooperation in painting space lines, cleaning and weeding the lot and plowing it after each snowfall.

The parking lot opened in February 1972.

For Thursday, Feb. 27, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Give-and-take is called for today with one whom you're involved with romantically. Hurt feelings stem from inconsiderate actions.

TAURUS (April 20-May20) Someone who has been kind to you in the past is in need of a favor. You know you should help but for some reason you won't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're placing needless strains on a friendship by expecting more than you should. Don't push it to the breaking point.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't make any points at home if you hold up accomplishments of outsiders as superior to your family's achievements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There will be slight delay regarding some news you've been expecting. This could get you down in the dumps. Relax — it will come.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today and tomorrow will be tricky for you financially. Don't go on spending sprees. Try to keep current on old obligations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you try to be considerate of those you have direct dealings with. Today, you're likely to put self-interest way out front.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will not show the amount of gratitude the incident calls for when another goes out of her way to be helpful to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be tempted to form an association with one whose reputation leaves a little to be desired. Watch out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 199 In eagerness to satisfy an ambition, you may tread on the toes of one who wouldn't use the same tactics if roles were reversed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Everyone will not be as infatuated with your ideas and plans today as you are. Don't be disappointed with a lukewarm response.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A hotshot salesman will consider you an easy mark today and try to palm something off with a dazzling pitch.

TEEN FORUM

SHE SAID NO: (Q.) I'm madly in love with Suzette. I think she really likes me, but she acts like I'm not even there. I asked her out, but she took the advice of her girl friends and said no. Please help help me. — Suffering in New York.

(A.) Do not be so sure that it is Suzette's girl friends who are keeping her from going out with you. Suzette is the one who said no. She just may not WANT to date you.

Ask her one or two more times. If it's still no, face reality and start looking for someone else.

THREATENED: (Q.) I was walking home from a friend's house. It was dark, I was crossing the park to take a shortcut. I was grabbed by some boys from school. They took me into some bushes and raped me. I tried to scream but they gagged my mouth.

I saw our family doctor and he gave me some pills. He told me to tell my folks.

I did, but they didn't believe me.

The boys told me to meet them or they would kill me. I need help! —Afraid in Connecticut.

(A.) Tell your parents again—in detail—all that has happened and ask them to help you. If they refuse, go to your counselor at school and tell him. Give him the names of the boys.

Do not meet them again in the park, or anywhere. Do not go out at night alone.

Opening lead — 4 ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is another hand we have borrowed from George Coffin.

There is nothing difficult about the hand. South has a normal notrump opening bid and North a book raise to three. Give West the king of diamonds and South has an easy nine tricks, but we find his majesty in East's possession. The diamond finesse will lose and South will have to struggle to score his game. In fact, he won't be able to bring it in, if West opens a spade and the defense does not falter. However, he will have no trouble if West opens a heart.

The old text books on play recommended the fourth best of your longest and strongest suit as the proper blind lead against notrump. The heart suit is West's strongest and a follower of one of those old textbooks would open a heart.

George points out quite properly that the ace of hearts represents a sure entry to the West hand; the queen of spades does not. Hence, the best opening lead is the four of spades, not the four of hearts.

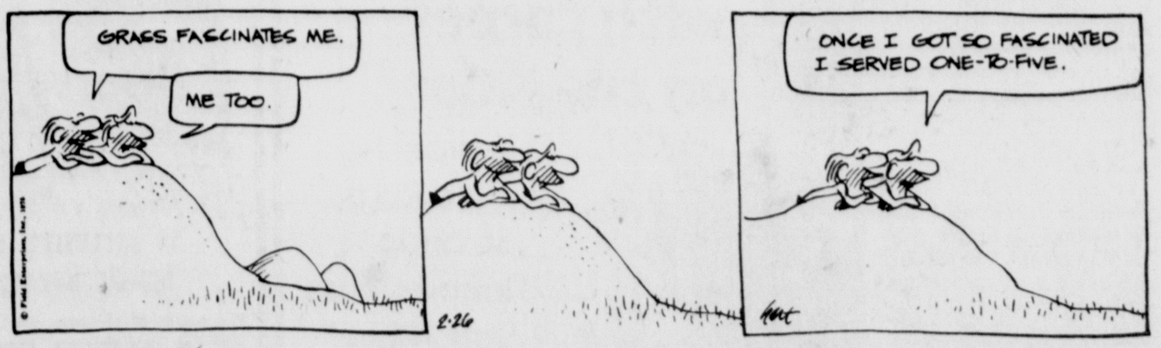

This time it works. No writer ever sets up a hand to disprove his theory. Far more mimportant is the fact that it will work far more often that it won't.

IT'S DALEY AGAIN (UPI)

Primary Victory Tantamount to Election

A Last Hurrah for Chicago's Mayor Daley

CHICAGO (UPI) — Richard Daley, the 72-year-old mayor who has run Chicago for 20 years, won a last hurrah and virtual assurance of four more years in City Hall with awesome clout Tuesday.

He beat off three challengers —the first Democrats to test him in his two decades of power —to win a mayoral primary that is tantamount to election.

The Daley clout —Chicagoese for power —was such that his closest rival went down by practically two to one. The alderman who won the Republican nomination declared himself all but out because a Daley man had just kicked him out of city council.

Fighting age, scandals and the aftereffects of a slight stroke suffered last May, this figured to be Daley's final run to stay as the man called the last of the big city bosses and recognized as a prime power broker in national Democratic politics.

He wanted to win it big, and he did. He had hoped for more than 55 per cent of the total Democratic vote. He got well over 60 per cent.

He whipped William Singer, 34, a reformist alderman, by 432,224 votes to 217,764 with 2,923 of 3,146 precincts counted. It was a sweet win. It was Singer who helped lead a band of rebels which shoved the Daley Chicago delegation out of the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

There were two other party upstarts to be dealt with. One was State Sen. Richard Newhouse Jr., 50, the first black to make a reasonable bid to become mayor of this increasingly black city. The other was Edward Hanrahan, 53, a rising light in Daley's organization until a solid black vote toppled him from his office as Cook County state's attorney.

Significantly, Newhouse was running with 58,548 votes to Hanrahan's 37,034. Singer and Newhouse are likely to be around four years from now when Chicago votes again for mayor. Hanrahan, maybe.

The Daley steamroller was such that John J. Hoellen, the last avowed Republican left in the City Council and the only major member of his party who would run for mayor, couldn't even win reelection as alderman. "It's obvious that if I can't be reelected in my own ward I can't run for mayor," Hoellen said.

There were some who had said Daley should not have run this time. He failed to win the endorsement of any of the major Chicago newspapers which had previously supported him. He was criticized for presiding over an administration in which his some of his closest associates, as well as top police officers, have been convicted of bribery and shakedowns.

He took flak for allegedly using his clout to throw lucrative city insurance business to one son and swell the political career of another.

In short, it was said Daley was losing his grip.

To demonstrate otherwise, Daley marshaled all his forces —big labor, big business, influentials of the black community and ethnic neighborhoods, not to mention a host of political IOUs.

Ford: Dilatory Congress Top Problem

HOLLYWOOD, FLA. (UPI) — President Ford says a "dilatory" Congress is the biggest problem facing the country today and predicts he will win his battle with the lawmakers over the issue of raising oil import fees.

"There is no question that the energy problem is more serious in a fundamental way and the economic problem is more soluble," Ford told a dinner for 15 Southern mayors Tuesday.

"We could be victims of decision makers totally outside the United States. To make ourselves invulnerable we have to show courage, sacrifice and vision," he said.

"The biggest problem facing the country is the dilatory tactics of Congress,' Ford told the mayors.

Ford dined with the mayors following a White House-sponsored conference on energy and economy.

The President scheduled a news conference this morning before playing 18 holes in the Inverrary Golf Classic at Fort Lauderdale with comedian Bob Hope, golf pro Jack Nicklaus and New York businessman Elliott Kahn.

Ford had predicted at the conference Congress would sustain his forthcoming veto of a bill suspending increases he imposed on imported oil. Press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford has been told by legislative aides he has enough votes to sustain a veto in the Senate and is picking up votes in the House.

But the victory Ford forecast did not make him more conciliatory toward Congress. He said that the estimated 16 cent a gallon increase proposed by the Democrats would be tantamount to a gasoline tax and would be "devastating."

Ford was also concerned that an oil depletion allowance amendment may be tacked onto the Democratic sponsored $21.3 billion income tax cut bill. Nessen told newsmen Ford thinks such an amendment would only complicate and further delay the legislation.

In other developments, Ford once more reaffirmed his support of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in Kissinger's policy dispute with Treasury Secretary William Simon.

Simon told reporters Monday the oil price floor that Kissinger said the administration would propose is not "American policy" and is still under discussion.

Kissinger apparently complained, and Ford instructed Nessen to assure reporters a minimum price for oil is definitely his policy although he has not yet determined the mechanism for achieving it.

Nessen also knocked down reports that former Attorney General Elliot Richardson, sworn in Tuesday as ambassador to Great Britain, will replace Kissinger.

"I know of no plans for Secretary Kissinger to leave his post," said Nessen. "I know of no plans for Secretary Simon to leave his post."

First Round to Dem Liberals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic liberals have won the first round of their fight to end the oil depletion allowance by convincing House Democrats to order a vote on whether to attach its repeal to a $21.3 billion tax cut bill.

But another amendment is pending which could dilute the effect of any repeal by allowing smaller producers to continue to receive the controversial tax break.

The bill is expected to be cleared quickly for House floor action by the House Rules Committee, which decides what bills may be debated and how they may be amended. It is tentatively set for House debate Thursday, after which it goes to the Senate.

The tax cut bill contains $8.1 billion in 1974 tax rebates of up to $200, another $8.1 billion in 1975 tax cuts and $5.1 billion in business tax cuts and investment incentives.

Repeal of the oil depletion allowance, a tax break worth $2.6 billion or more a year to the oil industry, was raised by Reps. William Green, D-Pa., Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., and other liberals on the House Ways and Means Committee who feel the popular tax cut bill is their best chance for a repeal vehicle this year.

They could not convince their own committee to go along, and a majority of the Ways and Means panel voted to ask the Rules Committee not to allow the depletion issue to be offered as an amendment to the tax bill.

Green and Gibbons carried their fight to the caucus of all House Democrats, which has the power to instruct Rules Committee Democrats. The Caucus voted 153 to 98 to order the Rules panel to allow the Green amendment.

However, the caucus also instructed the Rules Committee to allow a vote on an amendment by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., which would allow small producers —those producing less than 3,000 barrels per day —to continue receiving the depletion allowance.

Green said this would simply continue an unneeded loophole. Even small producers are selling oil for $10 a barrel or more today when they used to make a profit at $3 a barrel, Green said.

The depletion allowance, a half-century-old tax break, permits oil and gas companies to deduct 22 per cent of their income from oil and gas wells even before other deductions are taken. It can be used to wipe out for tax purposes up to 50 per cent of a company's taxable income.

Oil Exporters Talk Dollar

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil-exporting nations are talking about ending their dependence on the dollar, but Iranian Oil Minister Jamshid Amouzegar says they'll keep on using it to price petroleum.

He said today's meeting of the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries officials would probably consider quoting fuel prices in terms of Special Drawing Rights —the International Monetary Fund's artificial currency.

"There are many alternatives to cope with the decline of the dollar," he told reporters after the close of the first session Tuesday night. "The SDR is just one possibility."

Amouzegar played down the possibility it might replace the dollar, however, saying, "The dollar is our present mode of calculation and I think it will continue."

Iran earlier this month severed the link of its currency, the rial, with the dollar, hooking it up to the SDR, and financial experts speculated then the move could be a first step toward ending the dollar's link with oil.

The SDR is computed by comparing the relative values of 16 world currencies. The petroleum producers now receive almost all payments for their exports in dollars.

Amouzegar ruled out the possibility OPEC would substitute another currency for the dollar to protect oil revenues against the decline of the U.S. currency on world money markets. The dollar has been in a slump for 10 weeks.

"There would be no advantage to that," he said.

"There are two aspects of inflation," the Iranian said. "One is the worldwide wave of price increases. This aspect we will not discuss because the oil price has been frozen until Sept. 30.

"The second aspect, however, the sharp decline of the dollar, will have to be discussed."

Rabbi on Ex-President: Toppled From Within

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Let them put me behind bars," former President Nixon told his friends on the eve of his resignation, according to Rabbi Baruch Korff.

Korff, one of Nixon's closest associates in the last days of his presidency and still a staunch defender of the former president, told UPI Tuesday that Nixon felt like a martyr last August.

He also said Nixon told him recently: "I still don't know the full story of Watergate and the coverup." Korff said each of Nixon's aides told him a different story, all "selfserving."

"The tragedy of Richard Nixon is that he is strait laced," said Korff. "If he had been one of the Irish Mafia this would not have come to pass. He was toppled from within more than without from the time he came into office."

Korff said he is negotiating with a television network to pay $250,000, into the Nixon "Justice Fund" he is organizing, for a half-hour interview with Nixon on his post-presidential life. He declined to identify the network.

Korff, who has seen Nixon on several occasions since the resignation, quoted the former president as saying, "Of course I was wrong."

In the waning days of his presidency, said Korff, Nixon decided that a Senate trial "would disrupt the nation, give comfort to the enemy, state secrets could be jeopardized that might affect the country for a decade, and there would be a coliseum atmosphere." He quoted Nixon as saying during his deliberation on whether to resign: "For the good of the country, I Pat, Korff said she first felt "shamed" by the resignation but now "she's secure in the belief that her husband's contribution to the nation is the among the brightest of the presidency." She has "suffered a lot and aged" since the resignation, he said.
